DEFEAT SOVIET NIGHT ATTACK

HAIL PRIMARIES AS PROOF PURGE FACES DISASTER

Anti-Roosevelt Men Handy Winners.

BY CHESLY MANLY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 3.—[Special.]—Republicans and conservative Democrats hailed the results of yesterday's primaries in Virginia and Missouri as marking a complete collapse of President Roosevelt's undertaking to purge the Democratic party of all nonconformists.

The landslide victories of Senator Bennett C. Clark [D., Mo.], one of the leaders in the senate fights against Mr. Roosevelt's court packing and government reorganization bills, and of Representative Howard W. Smith [D., Va.], a foe of many major administration proposals, led to predictions that not a single Democratic member of congress will fall a victim of the administration's purge efforts.

Clark Wins by Landslide.

Senator Clark had three opponents, two of them, Joseph T. Davis and Wallis H. Meredith, having campaigned on "Roosevelt can do no wrong" slogans. He piled up a majority of almost four times the combined vote of his opponents.

Representative Smith, who was marked for slaughter at the polls because, as a member of the powerful rules committee, he helped bottle up various administration measures, including the wage and hour bill, was opposed by young William E. Dodd Jr., son of the former ambassador to Germany.

Dodd was handpicked for the race by the White House purge committee, including Thomas G. [Tommy the Cork] Corcoran and James Roosevelt, son and secretary of the President. He was indorsed by Secretary of Interior Harold L. Ickes, by Labor's Nonpartisan league, political adjunct to the C. I. O., and by David Lasser, head of the Workers' alliance, after Deputy WPA Administrator Aubrey Williams had told the organization of relief workers to "keep your friends in power."

Dodd Snowed Under.

Dodd campaigned on a platform of 100 per cent subservience to President Roosevelt, a program which the citizens of the historic 8th Virginia district repudiated by a vote of three to one. The district contains the homes of George Washington, Thomas Jefferson, James Monroe, James Madison, John Marshall, and George Mason. Representative Smith said he was proud that "the spirit and inspiration of the founders of our nation still lives and breathes in the breasts of Virginians."

An even more ironical result of the Virginia primary was the defeat of Representative Norman R. Hamilton, a loyal Roosevelt follower, by former Representative Colgate Darden, candidate of the conservative, anti-Roosevelt organization of Senator Harry Flood Byrd. Thus the purge in Virginia backfired, just as it did in Texas. In Virginia the administration set out to accomplish the defeat of Mr. Smith, and instead lost a loyal supporter in the person of Mr. Hamilton.

Lose Ground in Texas.

In Texas the purge committee set out to defeat such conservative veterans as Representative Hatton W. Sumners, chairman of the judiciary committee, and Representative Fritz Lanham, who has voted against more Roosevelt measures than any other Texan. Instead of defeating Sumners and Lanham, the administration lost three 100 per cent supporters of the President—Maury Maverick, W. D. McFarlane, and Morgan G. Sanders. Mr. Roosevelt had personally patted Maverick and McFarlane on the back as his "old friends."

Administration spokesmen sought to discount the importance of yesterday's primaries, insisting that the net result was a draw; that Senator Clark's victory was offset by the overwhelming renomination in Kansas of Senator George McGill, a Roosevelt "yes man," and that the Virginia reverses were offset by the renomination in West Virginia of the three congressmen who had opposition, all administration supporters.

Not an Issue in Kansas.

Loyalty to Mr. Roosevelt, however, was not an issue in the Kansas and West Virginia primaries. Senator McGill was opposed only by Joseph Dohner, an obscure farmer, and the West Virginia congressmen were opposed solely on local issues.

Troops to Open Maytag Plant Today

GOV. KRASCHEL ACTS WHEN CIO SPURNS PAY CUT

Ban on Labor Board Hearing Modified.

BY CHARLES PURVIS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Des Moines, Ia., Aug. 3.—[Special.]—Gov. Nels G. Kraschel tonight ordered the strike bound plant of the Maytag Washing Machine company at nearby Newton opened under martial law tomorrow noon. The plant has been closed three months by a C. I. O. strike. The governor also amended his dictum against National Labor board hearings anywhere in Iowa to cover only Jasper county.

The governor's order came after three days of fruitless efforts to reach a settlement based on a proposal by Maytag company officials. The plan retained the 10 per cent wage cut on which the strike originally was based. The union refused it. The governor then decided to open the plant.

More Troops Mobilized.

In thus turning against the C. I. O. the governor apparently became fearful that bloodshed might follow. He ordered 250 additional National Guardsmen to the Newton area. The troopers who have been maintaining martial law there were instructed to strengthen their guard around the Maytag plant and to patrol the town in full force.

The governor acted only a few hours before the deadline for a showdown between his own authority and that of the National Labor Relations board, whose hearing into the labor dispute was halted by military authorities under the governor's order. The NLRB moved its hearing from Newton to Des Moines and was prepared to resume taking testimony in the federal courthouse at 10 a. m. tomorrow.

Faced by the labor board's apparent determination to hold its hearing and force his hand, the governor backed down rather than test the conflicting power of the state and federal governments in such a case.

Modifies Scope of Troop Rule.

In issuing his orders to the National Guard concerning reopening of the plant, the governor advised them that martial law would be confined to Jasper county, in which Newton is located. The governor previously had said military rule would be extended the full length and breadth of Iowa to prevent the NLRB hearing from being held.

"This is the first serious controversy that has arisen between employer and employés within our state," the governor said, "and I believe firmly that much of it might have been avoided had negotiations been confined on both sides to Iowa people who are truly loyal to the state and its welfare."

The governor explained that he consistently had urged the acceptance of all reasonable proposals made by either party in the dispute, but had not sought to dictate the terms of settlement.

Drop Criminal Charges.

Under the governor's order all employés of the company who want to return to work can do so with the exception of twelve union members named by the military commission at Newton. The commission recommended that these men be barred from work during martial law.

The military commission also recommended that all criminal charges now pending against union employés in Jasper county be dismissed.

Although the Maytag proposition provided that the employés return to work at the 10 per cent wage cut ordered by the company on May 9, it provided for retroactive wage increases in the future if business warants.

Newton business men repeatedly have blamed outside C. I. O. agitators for the labor strife that disrupted their normally peaceful community.

Following a meeting of union officials to consider the reopening order William Sentner, international organizer of the C. I. O., announced that Gov. Kraschel had granted permission to hold a massmeeting in the high school at 10 a. m. tomorrow, two hours before the plant is scheduled to reopen, to permit the entire union membership to decide whether to go back to work or continue their strike.

HUNGARY PARALYZED BY HEAT WAVE; POLICE GUARD ICE CREAM BARS

BUDAPEST, Hungary, Aug. 3.—(AP)—A heat wave today virtually paralyzed life in Hungary.

It was 89 degrees in Budapest—a temperature seldom experienced here—and ambulances were unable to cope with calls for hundreds of heat victims stricken in streets and factories.

Trafic accidents reached the highest number on record. They were attributed in many cases to drivers suffering from sunstrokes.

Police protected ice cream bars against the rush of customers. Actors and actresses in theaters used improvised tubs and showers to keep cool between acts.

OBJECTS TO WPA WHISKY BOTTLES ON FRONT LAWN

Whisky bottles may be all right in their place. But their place definitly is not on her front lawn, on her parkway, or broken in the alley behind her home, Mrs. Edwin W. Meeker of 803 Milburn street, Evanston, told police yesterday.

She said that ever since the WPA started to tear up and repave Sherman avenue, which is at her corner, there has been a veritable plague of bottles, and she is becoming weary of it.

Wesley W. Polk, Evanston commissioner of public works, said he would notify the WPA foreman in charge of the project and see if the WPA workers couldn't park their empties some place else hereafter.

Courtroom Thermometer 116; Find Furnace Going

New York, Aug. 3.—(AP)—It was awfully hot in New York today when Magistrate Frank Giorgio took the bench. Chief Clerk Abraham Marker noticed it, too. The thermometer said 116 degrees. The magistrate halted a case saying: "Find out what makes this place so hot." In the basement Marker found a group of workmen stoking a roaring fire under a heating plant they were installing. They had forgotten to turn off the heat registers.

Mr. Corrigan Seems Headed for a Headache

New York, Aug. 3.—(AP)—Douglas Corrigan, the man who proved that east is west, gets home tomorrow from that trans-Atlantic junket made in a $900 airplane. And Mr. Corrigan is in a fair way of getting pushed around when he debarks.

New York's city hall, which is in Manhattan, and Brooklyn, which is a borough of the city on Long Island, have been arguing for three days about which is going to get the first crack at receiving the flyer when he arrives.

Corrigan, who comes from Long Beach, Cal., where things seem to move a little more slowly, is completely nonplussed.

People have been calling him on the ship to shore telephone night and day, telling him what he is going to do when the ship noses up the bay.

"O," Says Corrigan, "Is That So?"

Mostly his reply has been "O." He is on record once as having said "Is that so?"

Corrigan is eager to avoid offending Brooklyn and the mayor and an organization which prints its announcements in green ink and calls itself the "Douglas Corrigan committee, New York Irish-American harbor reception."

Nor does he want to offend Col. Jacob Ruppert, who has offered the Yankee stadium for a jamboree Friday night.

"If the mayor says all right about the Yankee stadium thing," Corrigan is quoted as saying, "why, then, all right."

Just where Corrigan will get off the boat is problematical. He may get pulled off.

Mayor Fiorello La Guardia's reception committee planned to remove him from the liner Manhattan at quarantine, in the bay.

Lines Warn "Mustn't Touch."

The Brooklyn reception committee was ready to remove him in Ambrose channel. [Ambrose channel is outside the bay, so anybody can see who would have the advantage in that argument.]

The United States lines said Brooklyn better not try that, and the customs office said Corrigan would be taken right to the North river dock.

Mayor La Guardia was on the fence. He is the administrative head of the entire city, he was loath to point out, and maybe the whole thing ought to be left to Corrigan.

Stanley Howe, the mayor's secretary, tried to inject a little dignity into the plans, too. "The committee," said Howe, meaning the mayor's committee, "will coöperate."

Heat Wave Warms Hearts; Rush for Marriage Bureau

The heat got the credit yesterday for a rush of business at the marriage license bureau in the county building. After 125 couples filed notices of intention to wed, Sidney Summerfield, chief clerk, commented: "It's been so warm the last few evenings that I guess many couples sit up late instead of breaking up their dates and going home. Then they get romantic and talk each other into marriage."

Philadelphia, Pa., Aug. 3.—(AP)—Mrs. Louise Spangler, observing her 100th birthday anniversary, commented "The Lord lets us live too long."

EDDIE CANTOR LASHES FORD FOR ACCEPTING HITLER'S DECORATION

New York, Aug. 3.—[Special.]—Eddie Cantor, comedian, assailed Henry Ford today, calling him "foolish, un-American, and unchristian for accepting a decoration from Hitler, the world's greatest gangster."

Cantor made his attack in an address at a luncheon in his honor at the Hotel Astor. The luncheon was given him by the Hadassah, women's Zionist organization, in celebration of Cantor's efforts in raising $500,000 in England for the removal of Jewish children to Palestine.

The comedian warned against anti-Semitism in this country, and urged Jewish business men to forget their business, if necessary, and organize to fight oppression.

"Forget your bridge, forget your hats," he told the women, "because the day will come, as sure as there is a god in heaven, when you will have no bridge, no hats, no liberty, and no family."

Study Problem of Boy Killer's Murder Mania

Cincinnati, O., Aug. 3.—[Special.]—Three Common Pleas judges sitting here to determine the degree of guilt of Lindberg Heist, 15 years old, confessed rape slayer of Shirley Ann Woodburn, 6 years old, today heard an amazing story.

They were told that the boy once had given every promise of a useful life. He was intelligent to a high degree and interested in his studies. Then evidences of a cruel nature developed. Once he attempted to poison an entire class at Washington Trade school, where he was a pupil.

Carson Hoy, assistant to Prosecutor Dudley M. Outcalt, told the court Heist obtained a quantity of white poison crystals last winter and gave pieces to his classmates, telling them it was rock candy. On another occasion, Hoy said, Heist attempted to put poison in the lunch boxes of several pupils.

Child Slain in Thicket.

At the time of the rape slaying last May 29 Heist was roaming the neighborhood where Shirley Woodburn lived and where he had lived two years before. When he met the child he asked her to accompany him into a small thicket, just off the street, to hunt rabbits. There he killed her.

A few minutes after the crime Heist talked with two men who lived in the neighborhood and with whom he had been friendly when he lived there. Later he was seen attempting to clean his clothing at a drinking fountain, the clew that led to his arrest.

When Heist was arrested he was found on a street corner selling newspapers in which the story of the child killing was displayed on the first page.

Confesses Beside Body.

He gave a fictitious name and denied ownership of a stained pocket knife found in his possession. The next day, when taken to a mortuary and placed before the body of the girl he confessed.

For weeks after his confession Heist was under observation of psychiatrists at the Cincinnati General hospital, where he underwent many mental tests. Psychiatrists found him to be not only sane but of unusually high intelligence. They also found he was a sadist and becoming worse.

At school Heist was regarded as a brilliant boy who learned quickly. His hobby was electricity, particularly the building of radio receiving sets. His penchant for electricity and physics earned for him the nickname of Einstein.

Poison Crystals Hoarded.

It was at the trade school that Heist obtained the poison crystals he attempted to foist upon his mates as rock candy. He was taking a course in electroplating in which the chemical was used. From the sides of plating tanks he scraped and saved the crystals until he had half a pound of them.

Children who formerly were neighbors of Heist told the court today he once found a quantity of discarded

BATTLE RAGES IN A FOG PIERCED BY JAP FLARES

200 Russians Fall in Border Fight.

BULLETIN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TOKIO, Aug. 4 (Thursday).—Reports reaching the war office today said that the Russians are moving tanks and big guns toward Changkufeng. The Japanese are expecting a new onslaught, it was said. Large numbers of Russian planes were flying over the area, but no bombs had been dropped. The skies had cleared after a heavy fog.

TOKIO, Aug. 4 [Thursday].—(AP)—Soviet Russians threw four battalions against Changkufeng and Shachofeng heights last night but met a repulse in which they lost 200 men, a Japanese army communique said today.

The Russians attacked in a dense fog, Japanese reported, but their ranks were exposed when Japanese suddenly fired thousands of flares into the sky throwing a ghoulish light over the battle.

Examination of their uniforms disclosed the attacking force was composed partly of the 118th Novokievsk infantry, which is reported to be a unit of the far eastern Red army.

Reds Abandon 15 Tanks.

The Reds abandoned 15 tanks and 25 pieces of light artillery, advices from the front related. The number of men in the three attacking battalions was not estimated by the Japanese war office, but it was said 250 tanks had been concentrated by the Red army forces in far southeastern corner of Siberia in the disputed border zone facing Japan's Corea and Manchukuo.

Despite the daily encounters, Japanese official quarters insisted they did not want a genuine war with Russia. Official circles declared Japan "is fully prepared if necessary" and repeated their stand that the course of the incident, most serious in a long series of border clashes, depend upon Russia.

Forces on Move All Day.

Russians on July 11 seized the Changkufeng area and it was recaptured last week by the Japanese. Japan does not intend to advance further, it was said. Russia has contended that the sector is soviet territory while Japan insists it is a part of Manchukuo. The heights dominate Possiet bay, a soviet naval anchorage.

Advices reaching Tokio said that soviet tanks and motor lorries rolled along the road between Novovivsk and Fashish through yesterday, apparently in a new concentration of strength.

A Corean army communique said soviet Russian artillerymen continued bombardment of the northern Corean town of Kojo from batteries across the Tumen river at Poshihtung, Hsiangshantung and Manshan. The government of Corea ordered a blackout and air defense measures throughout the northern area. Corean advices said residents of villages in and near the battle zone were evacuating. Two soviet bombers, the Corean army headquarters reported, appeared over Japanese hill positions and dropped bombs.

Protests Fly Between Capitals.

Protests and counterprotests were dealt back and forth between Tokio and Moscow. The Japanese government yesterday made its second protest in twenty-four hours.

The foreign office announced that Foreign Minister Gen. Kazushige Ugaki sent fresh instructions to Mamoru Shigemitsu, ambassador to Moscow, asking him to demand that Russia prevent "recurrence of lawlessness" along the border.

Japan had not replied to an identical demand made through the soviet charge d'affaires here, but it was understood Japan would answer today.

Tatsuo Kawai, a foreign office spokesman, disclosed that there was a series of about twenty soviet air invasions and bombings on the disputed area and Corea Tuesday between 4 o'clock Monday morning and Tuesday night.

Prepare for Emergency

MOSCOW, Aug. 3.—(AP) Russian officials declared today that the soviet army's operations in clashes with Japanese on the Manchukuan border were purely defensive, but the public was being prepared for the possibility of a great emergency.

There were indications that Russia wished to reach a peaceful settlement even though a government communique warned of possible "serious consequences" if Japanese provocations continued.

Newspapers were crowded with reports of patriotic massmeetings and resolutions by groups promising loyalty in defense of the soviet frontiers.

Declare Jap Charges False.

Soviet officials repeated their declarations that no Russian troops or planes had crossed the Manchukuan or Corean borders and said Japanese militarists had circulated false reports to the contrary "in order to justify their repeated attacks on soviet territory."

[The Russian view is that Japanese have been bombed on soviet territory.]

An indication that Russians were not forgetting Germany in their preoccupation with the far east was seen in a resolution of workers of the southwestern Russian Kiev district which was prominently displayed in the newspaper Izvestia.

"We know very well that Japanese imperialists are hand in glove with German Fascists who dream of occupying the Ukraine," the resolution said in reference to German designs on the rich southwestern district. "But they can only dream of it. The Ukrainian people as well as other peoples of our country will defend their land from west to east in all corners of the soviet union."

JAP BOMBS KILL BRITISH OFFICER ON YANGTZE SHIP

[Copyright: 1938: By the New York Times.]

HANKOW, Aug. 4.—[Thursday.]—J. T. C. Crawley, British captain of the Chinese customs survey launch, Kianghsing, and two Chinese were killed, and seven wounded when six Japanese planes bombed the vessel and machine gunned the personnel on Tuesday near Tuanfeng, thirty-six miles down the Yangtze river from Hankow.

The launch was engaged in regular patrol duty, which involves the inspection and maintenance of lights, buoys and aids to navigation. The British gunboat Gnat was sent to the scene of the bombing and returned today bringing the bodies of the dead.

When the Japanese planes started bombing the ship, Capt. Crawley ordered it beached on the north bank. He and the crew made for shore in a small boat, the first Japanese missils having missed the Kianghsing. The planes then swooped down and machine gunned the group, at the same time unloading more bombs on the Kianghsing. These found their mark and set the vessel afire. The funnels of the vessel were painted distinctively white and yellow. British diplomatic authorities plan a protest to the Japanese.

BARCELONA AIR BOMBED TWICE BY REBEL PLANES

BARCELONA, Aug. 3.—(AP)—Aided by the light of a new moon rebel planes raided Barcelona tonight for the third time since bombing of the cathedral of Barcelona on July 19.

Roaring over the capital twice in a spectacular attack, five bombers plunged their cargoes squarely into the city, spreading destruction through many of the central streets. An estimate of the number of victims and extent of damage was not available immediately, but it was feared they would be high. The city was blacked out at 10:40 p. m. by an air raid alarm effective for three hours.

For the first time since the early stages of the war, the capital's searchlights succeeded in picking out the attacking planes and illuminating them during their passage over the city. Anti-aircraft fire apparently caught one of the raiders, which broke from the squadron and fled, losing altitude rapidly.

JAPANESE CLAIM MASTERY OF AIR IN CHINESE FIGHT

Report 39 Planes Ruined in Hankow Battle.

SHANGHAI, Aug. 4 [Thursday].—(AP)—Both Chinese and Japanese claimed victory today in a large scale air battle near Hankow, provisional Chinese capital and target of the Japanese drive up the Yangtze river.

Japanese asserted that a Japanese air fleet engaged fifty-four Chinese planes, shot down thirty-two, and destroyed seven more in a bombing raid yesterday on Hankow which ended with only two Japanese craft missing.

Chinese declared they lost only six planes and brought down twelve Japanese raiders, including one bomber.

Bomb Railroads, Factories.

Japanese reports of the battle said "all efforts of China to rebuild her air force have been pulverized by Japanese attacks." Japanese said they virtually destroyed a Chinese air fleet of American, British, and Russian planes.

The battle was fought some miles away from Hankow. After the air fight, eighteen Japanese heavy bombers accompanied by ten pursuit planes appeared over Hankow and bombed railroad approaches and factories.

Several bombs struck defense positions along the massive dike protecting the city from near flood level waters of the Han river which flows into the Yangtze at Hankow.

Ground Forces "Under Water."

Japanese ground forces were admitted by Chinese to have entered Hwangmei, slightly more than 100 air miles east of Hankow, but Chinese said that the invaders were "under water." The city was said to have been flooded by rising Yangtze river waters which poured through broken dikes.

"The warfare prevented repair of the broken embankments," the Chinese said, in apparent denial of Japanese charges that the dikes were being cut deliberately to halt the Japanese advance.

Japanese striking at Nanchang, former Chinese air base 90 miles south of the conquered Yangtze river port of Kiukiang, were said to have overcome Chinese resistance to reach a point within 50 miles of their objective.

RESUME LOMBARD BUILDING TODAY; TO POST GUARDS

Deputy sheriffs will be on guard this morning when construction work is resumed on a house at Ash and Martha streets in Lombard. Other deputies will protect William Wallace, the building contractor, as he brings machinery and materials by truck to the site.

Sherif Arthur Bennett of Du Page county made these arrangements last night. The precautions are the result of the slugging of Warren B. Bolton, a trucking contractor, on July 27 while he was attempting to deliver an excavator to the site for Wallace. Wallace and Bolton are members of the Landis Award Employers' association, which uses nonunion labor. Three men have been arrested in connection with the assault on Bolton.

The Du Page county grand jury yesterday opened its inquiry into labor terrorism in Lombard which was climaxed with the attack on Bolton. He, Wallace, and Sherif Bennett testified. The grand jury will hear further evidence Monday.

"He never treated me nice before and I don't want to see him any more." The father is Guido Guidi, 3632 Harrison street. He was ordered to pay $10 weekly for the child pending hearing of his wife's suit for divorce. The wife is Mrs. Jennie Guidi, 4232 Potomac avenue.

Sails for Home

SIMONE SIMON.

New York, Aug. 3.—[Special.]—Simone Simon, French movie actress whose contract has just expired with Fox-Twentieth Century Films and who is now without a motion picture contract in this country, sailed on the French liner Normandie today. She said she might never come back to the United States.

Miss Simon sailed only after a tussle with the internal revenue bureau which sent a representative to the Normandie to be certain that she paid $4,000 in income tax due on last year's earnings. The actress did not have her passport with her on her reëntry permit which can only be secured upon proof that the United States taxes have been paid in full.

Kneeling on one of the beds in her suite, Miss Simon said to the treasury department representative: "I have paid my tax and I wouldn't get you in trouble for the world. If you find that I have not paid it I will come right back and give it to you."

2 FOUND GUILTY OF LAKE COUNTY STRIKE DISORDER

The first two of seventeen defendants were found guilty yesterday in Waukegan on charges growing out of the Chicago Hardware Foundry company strike disorders at North Chicago. They are Loren Ford, who was fined $100, the maximum, and Morris Wright, fined $3, the minimum, for disorderly conduct.

Ford, a truck driver for the Salvation Army, and Wright, a reporter for the People's Press of Chicago, were arrested July 16 when a crowd of strike sympathizers attempted to hold an unauthorized protest meeting on the courthouse square in Waukegan.

Ford's attorney said he would appeal, but Ford went to jail until his friends could produce the appeal bond. Wright also said he would appeal and posted bond.

Mr. Osborne died in St. Vincent hospital of internal injuries suffered Sunday night in a crash of two luxury trains of the New York Central railroad lines near Rocky Ridge, O., 19 miles east of Toledo. Mr. Osborne, a traveling man for Standard Brands, Inc., is survived by his widow, Virginia Roberts Osborne, and a daughter, Virginia Marie, both of Evanston.

CHALLENGES U. S. LABOR BOARD TO STOP CIO EXPOSE

Free Speech Is Defended by Congressman.

Buchanan, Mich., Aug. 3.—[Special.]—A challenge to test the constitutional guarantee of free speech as opposed to the attempt of the national labor relations board to curtail this fundamental right in its interpretation of the Wagner act was given to the board here tonight by Representative Clare E. Hoffman.

Hoffman is a Republican candidate for renomination from the 4th district. He defied the board by assailing the C. I. O. at a company sponsored meeting of employés of the Clark Equipment company. Since March, C. I. O. organizers have been attempting unsuccessfully to acquire exclusive bargaining rights for the workers.

Because of this situation the congressman made it plain that he hoped the board might see grounds for a complaint about his company sponsored talk. He wants to thresh the matter out in court.

Hoffman's conflict with the board began when the board cited the Muskin Shoe company of Westminster, Md., for violating the labor act. The basis of the complaint was that the copies of a speech made by Hoffman in congress assailing C. I. O. leaders as communists were distributed to employés.

The board in a ruling several weeks ago held that distribution of the speech by a company employé on company time and on company property was an unfair labor practice under the Wagner act. So tonight, Hoffman explained, it was his intention to talk under a situation similar to that which existed in the shoe plant. The labor board, he said, had been told of his purpose.

Employés Pack Auditorium.

The meeting tonight originally was scheduled to be held in the hall of the company employés' independent union. It was transferred to the larger quarters of the Community high school auditorium to accommodate the crowd. Most of the company's 1,000 employés were in the hall.

A member of the audience identified as a C. I. O. organizer drew the displeasure of the crowd when he attempted to heckle Hoffman. To the yells of the enthusiastic crowd to throw him out the man was led from the meeting by a policeman.

"The national labor board has refused to cite any authority other than the Wagner act for its decision that an employer cannot give to his employés a speech delivered in congress by a member of that body if that speech be antagonistic to the C. I. O." Hoffman said.

Ready to Tell C. I. O. Background.

"It is my purpose, until the courts hold otherwise, to draw attention of employés as well as the public the communistic activities of the C. I. O. and the unjust methods of procedure before the labor board. I will do this at the request of any employer or employés who may desire me to do so, as well as on my initiative.

"In a ruling in another case, the labor board held that it was an unfair labor practice where a foreman secured from the public record and showed to his fellow workers a copy of an organizer's registration, that showed he was a communist.

"The board thus holds that the employer may not, when an organizer comes into his plant, tell the employés that the organizer is a convict, thief, robber, murderer, rapist or kidnaper."

Hoffman said an alliance between the labor board and C. I. O. has resulted in such injustice as to raise a public stench.

Victims of Shock

Donald Buker, 15 months old, was knocked unconscious yesterday by an electric charge in his parents' bungalow at 1752 McVicker avenue. In his damp clothing the baby sat down on a frayed radio ground wire and grasped the worn wire of a lighted lamp, making a complete circuit.

Joseph Williams.

His mother, Lucille, 23 years old, supposed he had fainted. Running to pick him up, she was knocked down by the current. Successful in a second attempt to pull him free, she ran into the yard screaming for help.

A neighbor, Joseph Williams, 32, of 1754 McVicker avenue, a former life guard, heard her. Placing the baby on a dining room table, he began artificial respiration. In less than two minutes Donald was revived and gave a healthy cry. Dr. Sidney W. Raymond, who was summoned, said that first aid saved the baby's life.

Chinese Say Russia Has Only Copy of Treaty Map

HANKOW, Aug. 4 [Thursday].—Russia is in possession of the only map showing the Manchurian border as established by the Chinese-Russian treaty of 1869, a Chinese government official said here today in discussing the Changkufeng hostilities between the Japanese and Russians.

DOORMAN SEIZES BURGLAR IN GOLD COAST FOOT RACE

An alleged Gold Coast burglar was nabbed early today after an exciting chase in a Lake Shore drive building and in Astor street.

He was seen breaking into a side window of the first floor apartment of Johnson Davis, 1448 Lake Shore drive, by Charles S. Davis, 1500 Lake Shore drive, father of Johnson Davis. Charles Davis is president of the Borg-Warner corporation and his son is sales manager of a subsidiary.

The elder Davis notified Michael Donahue, doorman of the 1448 Lake Shore drive building. Donahue went into the apartment. The thief ran out, but saw another doorman and Davis in the lobby. He ran back into the apartment and escaped through the open window. Donahue chased him in Astor street to Schiller street, where he tried to hide under an automobile. The doorman pulled him out and held him for Policemen Leo Curran and Lawrence Stanko of the Hudson avenue station. The prisoner is Joseph Whalen, 28 years old, of 1526 Congress street.

Taunts of Ex-Sweetheart Cause Attempt at Suicide

The taunts of a former sweetheart prompted Michael Antonelli, 23 years old, 1444 West 74th street, to attempt to kill himself last night. Friends found him almost unconscious in a gas filled room. He had also swallowed iodine. He was taken to St. Bernard's hospital. There he told police that his former sweetheart, now married, telephoned him and joked over their old romance.

Thieves Loot Yacht; Get Life Raft and Old Liquor

Willard O. Dice, 7218 Crandon avenue, a trucking contractor, reported to Woodlawn police last night that thieves had boarded his yacht, the Ottmar, in the outer Jackson Park harbor and stole property valued at $215. The loot included a life raft, ten pairs of slacks, some gin, and eight quarts of whisky, 24 years old.

CITY ACTS TO BAN SALE OF TOY GUNS THAT LOOK REAL

The city council yesterday directed Corporation Counsel Barnet Hodes to draft an ordinance prohibiting the sale of toy guns that look like real ones. This action was suggested recently by Lieut. Otto Erlanson of the detective bureau.

Police have found that many robbers are armed with imitation weapons which can be procured in almost any toy, hardware, or variety store. Fake weapons were found in the arsenal of three ex-convicts who were arrested last month.

Girl Victim of Attack Attempts to End Life

Miss Helen Luzar, 20 years old, 1924 South Leavitt street, who was to have appeared as a witness in a rape case in the Felony court today, leaped from a second floor window of her home last night in what police said was a suicide attempt. She suffered a pelvic fracture and was taken to the County hospital. Miss Luzar was attacked in a southwest side tavern several nights ago. She later signed a complaint against John Youngman, 29, of 6344 South Seeley avenue, a painter. He is to be arraigned today.

BACKACHE, LEG PAINS MAY BE DANGER SIGN

Of Tired Kidneys

If backache and leg pains are making you miserable, don't just complain and do nothing about them. Nature may be warning you that your kidneys need attention.

The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking excess acids and poisonous waste out of the blood. Most people pass about 3 pints a day or about 3 pounds of waste.

Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning shows there may be something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

If the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filters don't work well, poisonous waste matter stays in the blood. These poisons may start nagging backaches, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness.

Don't wait. Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from the blood. Get Doan's Pills.

ITALIANS START DRIVE ON JEWS; PURGE SCHOOLS

Curb Upon Professions Expected Next.

ROME, Aug. 3.—(AP)—The Italian government today announced the first of anti-Jewish measures foreshadowed by the recently promulgated Fascist doctrin which holds that Italy's 47,000 Jews do not belong to the Italian race.

The order barred foreign Jews from Italian schools—a measure of limited scope since it does not affect Italian Jews. The number of foreign Jews normally attending Italian schools is not large.

Other Measures Expected.

Foreigners attending Italian schools in 1936-'37 totaled 2,612, but the proportion of Jews was not known.

Nevertheless, Italian Jews considered the regulation symptomatic, because it disclosed that the racial campaign already had passed from the academic to the practical stage. Other more stringent regulations were expected to follow.

According to creditable sources, a comprehensive law governing the activities of Italian Jews is being formulated and the Fascist grand council is expected to act on it Oct. 1.

Scope of Racial Law.

One reliable informant said the prospective law probably would have these general objectives:

1. Elimination of Jews from the general staffs of the armed forces, from journalism, teaching, and arts—such as motion pictures, literature, and painting—from political and economic positions connected with the state, from the Fascist party, and from Fascist syndicates.

2. Establishment of a ratio of Jews to Aryans in such professions as law, medicine, and engineering.

3. Limitation of the number of Jews eligible to receive university degrees.

4. Supervision of Jewish economic activity to prevent large Jewish-controled commercial or financial interests. Individual Jewish enterprise would not be restricted.

Changes to Be Slow.

The restrictive measures probably will be effected gradually so as not to outdistance popular opinion which every Fascist propaganda agency is striving to cultivate in line with the new racial theory.

A group of Fascist professors, under the auspices of the ministry of popular culture, on July 14 reported on racial studies, declaring: "It is time that Italians proclaimed themselves racially conscious."

"The population of present day Italy is predominantly of Aryan origin and its civilization is Aryan."

Decree Limits Wills.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Aug. 3.—A law made public today decreed that an Aryan's will is invalid if a Jew is made a beneficiary and near Aryan relatives of the testator are ignored.

A slap at the clergy was seen in a provision making a will void when the testator is led to make bequests "by taking advantage of his fear of death."

In another act to erase Jews from German institutions, the minister of interior ordered an examination of the names of all streets in Germany to make sure none was named after a Jew. All such names are to be changed immediately.

New York, Aug. 3.—(AP)—Ariane Borg, 22 years old, blonde French actress, disclosed today as she sailed for home that a Hollywood studio spent $70,000 "grooming" her for pictures which she never made. She said that during the two years and three months she was under contract with Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer she learned to speak English, ride, fence, walk, and dance properly; but she had no opportunity to make a picture. Nevertheless her salary was raised from $350 a week to $500—with all other expenses paid.

QUIZ CORONER IN SIDLEY CASE AT SECRET HEARING

Step in Battle to Block Heiress Inquest.

BY WAYNE THOMIS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TORONTO, Ont., Aug. 3.—[Special.]—Dr. Smirle Lawson, chief coroner of Toronto, today withstood a three hour question barrage from attorneys for four of the five executors of the will of Mrs. Mabelle Horlick Sidley, malted milk heiress. The hearing was held in secret, with the public and newspaper men barred.

The examination was a preliminary to arguments in the Ontario High court between the executors' counsel and crown attorneys over a petition for a permanent injunction to prevent reopening the inquest into Mrs. Sidley's death. Coroner Lawson began the inquest here July 26. The same day the executors stopped it by filing the injunction suit.

Seek to Disqualify Coroner.

Lawyers for the executors are seeking to show that Lawson was retained before Mrs. Sidley's death as her private physician. If this is so, they contend, he has disqualified himself as coroner in the case.

Dr. Lawson denies he ever acted as a private physician in the case. His contention is supported by affidavits filed with the court by William Sidley of Racine, Wis., only son of Mrs. Sidley; the latter's attorney, R. M. Huycke; Dr. Herbert Bruce, former lieutenant governor of Ontario, and others.

Throughout his questioning today Lawson insisted that even before Mrs. Sidley died here July 6 at the home of W. Perkins Bull, attorney and capitalist, young Sidley asked him to conduct an inquest.

D. L. McCarthy and R. A. Sankey, attorneys for the executors, announced after the hearing that they will issue a demand for the appearance of young Sidley, who is reported to have left last evening for Chicago.

Important Issue in Case.

The injunction contest is important because it represents the first phase of a legal struggle developing over the disposition of Mrs. Sidley's three million dollar estate.

Under a will made last April 8, when she had been a guest in the Bull home for more than a year, she bequeathed to Bull $250,000 from her estate and a one-third interest in the residue. It is estimated this brings his share to $850,000. She made an identical bequest to her son, William.

After these terms became known, young Sidley and his uncle, Alexander J. Horlick, also of Racine, indicated they would contest the will and try to probate one of three earlier wills.

It is understood Sidley and Horlick are anxious to have the inquest held to obtain the official testimony from neurologists and pathologists who conducted a post mortem examination on Mrs. Sidley's body. These doctors are said to be prepared to testify she died of an unusual brain disease and this disease affected her mental faculties prior to her death.

N. U. STUDENTS GIVE THEIR IDEA OF U. S. UNDER DER FOOHRER

Imagine this:

Der Foohrer Dolph Stalolini, boss of the Hasheesh party, has snatched control of the United States. He has begun a purge of all brown eyed persons and demanded protection of American minorities in Canada and a pathway to Alaska.

Such was the picture of a dictator-ridden America envisioned yesterday in a satirical edition of the Summer Northwestern, published by the summer school students at Northwestern university. The editors also assumed that the dictator had purged the faculty and arranged for a book bonfire on the campus.

SPIRES LOOKING UP

By CALEB

ONLY FROM a great height does one really see the city. Its echoing canyons from the sidewalk are impressive. Glimpsing its great mass through swirling mists from a boat takes the breath away. But the full, majestic sweep of the city is taken in only from a plane or spire that towers above its fellows.

They tell us, sometimes, that mankind has not come far from the dust that witnessed his beginnings. But he is as far above it as these towers are above the soil from which they spring. These towers never rose alone; man's mind soared aloft with them.

They tell us, too, that these tall skyscrapers, these masses of stone and steel are "business projects." Assuredly they are. But into each one, business project that it is, a dream is built—an exultant dream of achievement, service and permanence.

Into each one is woven the mind, the soul and the strength of not one, but a thousand men. First of all, each structure was a vision, and then took shape on paper. Plans, tracings, blue prints, estimates without end—many minds, each giving of its best.

And after that—skilled hands. Against all nature each structure reared an ungainly head toward the sky. Riveters, staccato gatling guns, announced the upward campaign. Sharp skeletons at first—steel girders like groping fingers etched against the clouds. Then finally, the smooth-cut stone, wrapping an enduring mantle over hard shoulders, softening ungainly angles into planned symmetry.

And now people live in them—building other plans and dreams. They are sheltered or make their living there. From the buildings pours a steady beat of energy to keep the city's pulse at full rhythm.

They are good things to know, these tall, straight buildings. But if one would meet them on an equal footing—not be dwarfed by their great bulk—he should see them looking down. Then with Jovian detachment he can appraise them, and see that they—like himself—are mortal. But while they live, they look up, reach up, stand firm and endure through storm and weather to their appointed end.

It's No Surprise That You're Constipated!

If constipation has you bogged down so you feel tired, sunk, all played out—it's time you asked yourself some questions!

What have you had to eat lately? Just meat, bread, eggs, potatoes? It's no surprise you're constipated! The chances are you don't get enough "bulk." And "bulk" doesn't mean a lot of food. It's a kind of food that isn't consumed in the body, but leaves a soft "bulky" mass in the intestines and helps a bowel movement.

If this is what you lack, your ticket is crisp crunchy Kellogg's All-Bran for breakfast every day. It contains the "bulk" you need plus Nature's great intestinal tonic, vitamin B_1.

Eat All-Bran every day, drink plenty of water, and take a new lease on life! All-Bran is made by Kellogg in Battle Creek. Sold by every grocer.

LIFER TESTIFIES ANOTHER GUILTY OF TWO MURDERS

Says Sweetheart's Father Slew Doctor and Wife.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

South Paris, Me., Aug. 3.—[Special.]—Paul Dwyer told his story today. In a flat, emotionless voice he branded Deputy Sherif Francis M. Carroll a double murderer. He accused the church deacon of killing not only Dr. James G. Littlefield but also the country physician's wife. In tones that never wavered he depicted himself as a helpless victim in Carroll's hands who meekly confessed the slaying of Dr. Littlefield and went to prison for life, afraid to tell the truth.

Led on with his story—not by the prosecution, but, amazingly, by Defense Attorney Clyde Chapman—the boy of 19 testified that Carroll strangled Mrs. Littlefield with his bare hands on Turkey hill, near South Paris, when she confronted him the night after her husband was killed.

Boy Sticks to Story.

The boy already had told how Dr. Littlefield was killed. He laid that crime to Deputy Sherif Carroll almost the moment he took the witness chair today. He told his story carefully, almost exactly as Prosecutor Ralph M. Ingalls had paraphrased it in his opening address yesterday. He stuck to that story through hours of verbal dueling with Defense Attorney Chapman.

Then he went into the bizarre events that followed Dr. Littlefield's death the night of last Oct. 13. He said he decoyed Mrs. Littlefield away from South Paris that night under the pretext that her husband had killed two men in a hit-run accident and wanted her to meet him in southern New England.

He said he confessed the truth to her "somewhere near Boston" late the next day; that they drove back to South Paris, arriving some time around midnight.

Deputy Driving Away.

They drove up to Carroll's house just as the deputy was driving away in his car, he testified. They followed Carroll and drove up beside him, Dwyer said.

"Mrs. Littlefield started to get out of the car," he went on. "Carroll started out at the same time, and somebody there had a gun. I don't know who it was. Anyway, it finally landed in Carroll's hands, and he hit her over the head with it. Carroll got in the back seat with the gun and told me to drive to Turkey hill, and I did.

Q.—What did Mr. Carroll do? A.—He killed Mrs. Littlefield.

Q.—How? A.—Strangled her.

Q.—How did he strangle her? A.—With his hands, I imagine.

Q.—Weren't you there? A.—Yes, I didn't watch it.

Q.—You turned your face, is that correct? A.—That is.

Q.—Then what happened? A.—I don't know, after that.

Covers Body with Rug.

His mind was a blank, the boy said, and he drove away on a mad flight toward Portland, the body of Mrs. Littlefield still propped in the front seat beside him; the body of her husband stuffed in the locked trunk in the back of the sedan he drove. It was not until then, Dwyer said, that he moved the body to the back seat and covered it over with a rug.

Just as directly, the boy told how Dr. Littlefield was killed. He was on the stand only a moment, and had answered only one routine question when Prosecutor Ingalls asked him:

Q.—Did you murder Dr. Littlefield? A.—No.

Q.—Did you see Dr. Littlefield murdered? A.—Yes.

Q.—Who murdered Dr. Littlefield? A.—Francis Carroll.

Dwyer faltered only once—when the name of Barbara Carroll, 18, his schoolgirl sweetheart, first was mentioned. She sat in the courtroom, a vivacious blonde girl in a Tyrolean dress, watching him intently. Barbara, he said, told him that her father, the present defendant, had improper relations with her.

Forced to Answer Question.

When he first was asked whether he ever was intimate with Barbara, Superior Justice William E. Fisher cautioned him that he did not need to answer unless he wanted to. Ingalls repeated his question:—

"Did you and Barbara become intimate?"

"I'd rather not answer," the boy said firmly.

But later, when placed in a position where he had to answer the question in order to complete his story, he bowed his head and admitted that he had been intimate with Barbara.

The prosecution alleges that Dr. Littlefield was slain by Carroll when the doctor threatened to send the deputy sherif to prison because of his relations with his daughter.

HAIL PRIMARIES AS PROOF PURGE FACES DISASTER

Anti-Roosevelt Candidates Handy Winners.

publican national committee said the results of the primaries in Missouri and Virginia indicated that "a grass roots swing away from Roosevelt and the New Deal is taking place throughout the country."

"What started out to be a New Deal purge is becoming a New Deal rout, which will reach its climax in November," Mr. Hamilton said.

Reed's Choice Pleases Hamilton.

Hamilton said he was gratified by the nomination of former Gov. Clyde M. Reed as the Republican candidate for United States senator from Kansas. Hamilton, William Allen White, and other party leaders had opposed the Rev. Gerald B. Winrod, who was accused of religious and racial intolerance and pro-Nazi sympathies. Winrod trailed far behind Mr. Reed, as did Dallas Knapp and the Rev. J. C. Fisher.

Hamilton said the Republicans in Kansas would have a strong ticket, headed by Mr. Reed, candidate for the seat of Senator McGill, and State Senator Payne Ratner, nominee for governor. The Democrats renominated Gov. Walter Huxman without opposition.

President Roosevelt kept out of the Missouri primary contest after he had been advised by Charles Michaelson, publicity director of the Democratic national committee, that it would be impossible to defeat Senator Clark.

Originally Marked for Purge.

The son of the late speaker Champ Clark, however, was one of the nine Democratic senators up for reëlection this year who originally were marked for the purge because of their opposition to the ill-fated court packing bill.

Early this year there was great rejoicing in White House purge circles when Senator Claude Pepper [D., Fla.], a 100 per center, defeated Representative J. Mark Wilcox, an anti-Roosevelt Democrat. Since then, however, the trend has been in the other direction. Senator Guy M. Gillette [D., Ia.], one of the nine on the original slaughter list, defeated Representative Otha D. Wearin [D., Ia.], who had the indorsement of WPA Administrator Harry L. Hopkins and James Roosevelt. The purge collapsed in Indiana when the McNutt-Townsend-Minton machine, frightened by the prospect of an independent race that would split the Democratic party, renominated Senator Frederick Van Nuys.

Reverse in Colorado.

In Colorado, the purge collapsed when the state assembly unanimously indorsed Senator Alva B. Adams, another foe of the court packing bill, for the renomination. In Nevada, Senator Pat McCarran is opposed by a 100 per cent supporter of the President but is not expected to have much difficulty. In Connecticut, Senator Augustine Lonergan has only nominal opposition.

That leaves only Senator Millard E. Tydings in Maryland, Senator Ellison D. Smith in South Carolina, and Senator Walter F. George in Georgia, all opposed by hand picked administration candidates, as possible victims of the purge. Even money is now available that all three will be returned to the senate.

Control in 1940 Goal.

The ultimate objective of the purge attempt was control of the Democratic party in 1940. Many Democrats now are convinced that Mr. Roosevelt will seek a third term. If this should not appear to be feasible, they say, the President would want to dictate the choice of a nominee to succeed him.

On Trial for Slaying

hypodermic needles on a refuse heap back of a hospital. He attempted to use them on several, they said. A girl, 11 years old, said he once accosted her in a field and said he would skin her alive. She ran to her home and told her parents.

When Heist was under observation in the hospital, another witness told the court today, he offered to pay him to obtain a revolver. Heist told him, the witness said, he wanted to shoot his way out of the place.

Case Nears Windup.

The state will complete its case tomorrow when two psychiatrists have testified. They will explain to the court that the boy's condition cannot be improved and that with increasing age he will become a greater menace to society.

On the plea of guilty the defense will attempt to get the lightest possible sentence and indicated today it would be content with a recommendation of mercy in the event of first degree murder finding. Second degree murder and manslaughter verdicts are possible.

Should the verdict be first degree murder without mercy the boy would be electrocuted in the Ohio state penitentiary at Columbus. If mercy is granted he will be confined in the state reformatory until of age and then transferred to the penitentiary.

OPEN WPA CASH FAUCET TO BEAT HAPPY CHANDLER

Rolls Doubled, Pay Raised in Panic to Aid Barkley.

BY WILLIAM SHINNICK.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Louisville, Ky., Aug. 3.—[Special.]—Millions in federal funds are being used in an endeavor to keep Gov. A. B. [Happy] Chandler from supplanting Alben W. Barkley in the United States senate. This money may be the deciding factor when votes for the Democratic nomination are cast Saturday.

The governor has charged that since he announced his candidacy the WPA forces in Kentucky have been increased from 30,000 to 68,000. This statement is accompanied by the claim that the Barkley organization, which includes most of the old line state Democratic leaders, is careful to see that only Barkley voters get on the pay rolls. In general the charges have been substantiated by investigators for the senate's committee on campaign expenditures. The committee also has charged that the same tactics are being followed by the governor's organization with state jobs.

Maximum Pay Increased.

At the same time the pay of the Works Progress administration's employés has been increased. The maximum one could get for common labor was $22.40 a month. Now he can work longer hours and receive up to $32.

Chandler apparently has been making inroads on the strength of Barkley. At the outset his case seemed hopeless. President Roosevelt had expressed a preference for Barkley, his senate floor leader and one of the most subservient of his yes men. Kentuckians, as a matter of local pride, like to see their senators play leading rôles on the Washington scene.

But Chandler is the most likable and magnetic political showman who has risen to power in Kentucky in at least two decades. Given an even break he could defeat any other candidate with ease. He has made a hard campaign, has spoken all over the state, has shaken thousands of hands. Some of the unprejudiced think even now that he has an outside chance to be nominated.

All Classes Bought Off.

Only that. The weight of the money is against him. Not only the poor and unfortunate are being aligned against him—the farm vote is being turned against him by the same methods.

Three years ago, when Chandler went into a run-off primary for the governorship nomination, Shelby county gave him 3,200 votes. It gave Rhea 780. Then it was a contest between two Kentuckians. The problem of the government's money didn't enter.

But last year 3,000 Shelby county farmers received government checks totaling about $268,000. The amount this year will be around $200,000. The Barkley people claim Shelby will go this time for Barkley by at least 700. Even Chandler's warmest supporters admit it will be difficult to carry this county for him.

Assails Tobacco Statements.

Chandler has striven to convince the farmers that Barkley has done them wrong. He has asserted that the senator let the crop allotment experts in Washington reduce the state's tobacco acreage to 85 per cent of a ten year average, while neighboring states got from 96 per cent to 100 per cent of the average. But it's hard to argue against cash in hand.

The governor is sarcastic about the WPA setup.

"They want to pull up a stump," he says. 'They send two laborers at 20 cents an hour each to do the work. Over them are five supervisors, six foremen, seven inspectors and twelve stenographers. That's where the government's money goes."

The electorate is cynical about the spending of money by both sides.

Five Votes Insure a Job.

One intelligent Kentuckian said that anybody who can swing five votes can have a job at $100 a month from the Chandlerites or one at $125 a month from the Barkley forces.

Much has been made of the supposed poisoning of the governor. Unquestionably he was desperately ill for several days and was forced to abandon his speaking dates for a week.

There were references to his "publicity gag." The illness wasn't for publicity purposes; his chances suffered by his absence. Nobody in Kentucky seems to be sure whether the report of the poisoning was a help or a hindrance to him.

Barkley, big and rawboned, has visited nearly every county in the state. He is running strictly on his record as a Roosevelt supporter. He has made fully as many speeches as his opponent—and longer ones.

His Last Appeal

ANSWERS CHARGE OF POLITICS IN LAKE CO. RAIDS

Attorney Philip W. Yager in a letter yesterday asked Dr. J. W. F. Davies, a Waukegan minister, if the latter's statement on the anti-gambling crusade in Lake county referred to him. Dr. Davies, a leader in the movement, charged that he learned it was inspired by political motives or by some lawless group.

Yagar is a Democratic candidate for probate judge. He is also the attorney for the reform group. In his letter Yager offered to renounce his candidacy or resign as counsel for the group if any one doubted that his motives were other than a sincere attempt to clean up the county.

Special Prosecutor Charles E. Jack yesterday received a petition signed by 1,000 persons approving his gambling investigation. He will present it to the county board Tuesday when he asks for a $7,500 appropriation.

TALK OF RETIRING MISUNDERSTOOD, SAYS SEN. LEWIS

Washington, D. C., Aug. 3.—[Special.]—Senator James Hamilton Lewis today said there "was a misunderstanding over his statement that he would resign from the senate in 1939. His term expires Jan. 3, 1943.

"The statement," he said, "grew out of the revivals in print of some parts of my speeches in the 1936 campaign and later references to the subject in conversation with Gov. Henry Horner In the presence of friends.

"In this I stated that, when I should leave the service, I would prefer to leave in 1940, at the time when a general election for president and congressmen could elect my successor so as to avoid a special election. Nothing more has been stated by me touching on a present political situation."

G. O. P. IS URGED TO MAKE RACKETS A NATIONAL ISSUE

Clean Politics Will Kill Them, Says Dewey Aid.

BY PARKE BROWN.

Republicans were urged last night to join the war on rackets by refusing them the political shelter of their party. This plea was made by Francis E. Rivers, an assistant of Thomas E. Dewey, district attorney of New York county. The rackets, he said, hold almost every large American city in their grip.

Rivers told the program committee of the Republican national committee that it should include in its planning for the G. O. P. the breaking down of this shelter. He was one of the speakers on the evening program in Thorne hall on the Chicago campus of Northwestern university.

Rivers described Dewey's successful fight against the rackets in New York City. Then he insisted that the results accomplished would have been impossible if political influence had not been eliminated completely.

A Political Question.

"The fate of the rackets," he said, "is in real sense a political question. Corrupt politics nurses rackets. Enlightened politics destroys rackets.

"Certainly the national government must not, where it suits its own convenience, treat local cancers as none of its concern.

"If we are to recognize the fact that organized rackets can exist only through the corruption or the incompetence of local political machines, then we must recognize the clear duty of a national political party to crush such local machines."

Rivers, a Negro who is considered one of Dewey's ablest assistants, told the story of the New York prosecutor's war on Dutch Schultz and other gangsters. But his hearers applauded most warmly as he urged clean politics as the best weapon against the brood.

As a first requisite toward ending the racket evil, Rivers listed the election of an honest local prosecutor free from political restraints.

Intervention Is Urged.

State governments, however, should intervene, he said, when local law enforcing agencies fail, and where states have no ability to break up the evil, the federal government has a clear duty.

"The national Republican party," he said, "could indorse the principle of divorcing politics and municipal government. It could call upon state governments to step in and aid civic minded persons in their fight for clean government."

The other speakers on the evening program were Jay N. Darling, president of the National Wild Life federation, and Mrs. W. W. Ramsey, vice president of the Illinois League of Women Voters.

FIFI D'ORSAY.

Hollywood, Cal., Aug. 3.—[Special.]—Morgan Hill, screen actor, said today his wife, Fifi D'Orsay, vivacious French actress, had notified him she planned to go to Michigan within a few days to institute divorce proceedings. She is in New York City. Hill disclosed that he and Miss D'Orsay had been separated eighteen months. "Incompatability" was Hill's reason for failure of the 1934 marriage.

SEES U. S. VOTERS REBEL AGAINST 'FUEHRER' IDEA

Dr. Glenn Frank, chairman of the Republican program committee, commenting on the results of primary elections in Virginia and Missouri, compared President's recent references to himself with the titles chosen by "Der Fuehrer" Hitler and "Il Duce" Mussolini.

"The instances in which the Roosevelt purge have been stopped," said Frank, "indicate a healthy American rebellion against the administration's attempt to establish the European doctrin of 'The Leader' here under the polite name of party discipline.

"The Americanized version of 'The Leader' doctrin is simply the old American institution of the boss expanded to a national scale and given a halo of idealism."

TENNESSEE ENDS PRIMARY BATTLE; CAST VOTE TODAY

Browning Tests Power of Crump After Break.

Nashville, Tenn., Aug. 3.—(AP)—Tennessee's political battle of personalities rather than issues will be decided at the ballot boxes tomorrow with the Democratic nominations for governor, United States senator, and public service commissioner at stake.

Candidtaes concluded their oratorical blasts tonight in a mêlée which has produced threats to use the militia, a federal court injunction to bar the governor from such a step, the swapping of acrimonious charges and a warning from the senate campaign expenditures committee that the victor might have to face a contest on "excessive expenditures."

Highlighting the primary is the race for the gubernatorial nomination, with Gov. Gordon Browning seeking indorsement for a second term. He faces the determined opposition of National Committeeman E. H. Crump and his Shelby county [Memphis] organization that for years has been all-powerful in Tennessee's most populous city.

Crump is backing Prentice Cooper, Shelbyville attorney, against Browning. Each side has accused the other of "dictatorship" aspirations. Two years ago when the governor was nominated, Crump was his good friend.

The governor, who received all but 878 of the 60,752 votes in Shelby county two years ago, has attempted to "purge" the present registration lists through laws specially enacted at extra sessions called after his break with Crump.

Charging an effort was being made to "steal the election" in Memphis, the governor considered sending 1,200 National Guardsmen to patrol polling places there, but Federal Judge John D. Martin issued an injunction against that action and denounced the governor as a "tyrannical despot." The troops now are out of the state, having left yesterday for maneuvers in Mississippi.

Gasoline Cars to Replace Pike's Peak Locomotive

(Picture on back page.)

Colorado Springs, Colo., Aug. 3.—[Special.]—Three new stream lined gasoline cars will replace the famed steam locomotives that for the last 50 years have been hauling sightseers to the top of Pike's Peak. The new cars can carry fifty passengers.

Low Cost Building Set Back as Council Bans Wallboard

Low cost housing in Chicago received a setback yesterday when the city council outlawed the use of wall board in nonfireproof buildings. An amendment to the new building code to this effect was introduced by Ald. William J. Cowhey [41st], and jammed through without discussion near the end of the council meeting.

The section amended deals with the materials that can be used in partitions in buildings of ordinary or wood frame construction. It provides, first, for laths covered with a coating of plaster at least one-half inch thick. Then it states that any materials substituted for lath and plaster must be of the same total thickness and have equal fire resistive and sanitation values.

Void Provision for Substitutes.

Before it was amended the section merely provided that any substitution for lath and plaster must have equal fire resistance and be at least three-eighths inch thick. Under these terms it was possible for a builder to cut construction costs by using a wall board which had a fire rating equal to that of wood lath and plaster. [A partition covered on both sides with wood lath and plaster has a fire rating of twelve minutes. Nearly all wall boards meet this standard.]

The amendment, however, makes wall board an economic impossibility, architects and engineers said. To meet the requirements of the new section, the substitute would have to be at least ¾ inch thick. This is based on the assumption that the laths are ¼ inch thick in addition to the ½ inch coating of plaster.

No saving could be effected by use of a product manufactured to conform to the amended code, according to the Insulation Board institute. Manufacturers do not claim a direct saving in the purchase of their product. For an average thickness, ¾ inch, its cost is about equal to that of plaster and laths. But the wall board can be applied easily and quickly, reducing other construction costs.

No Wall Board Permitted.

The council's action makes complete the elimination of wall board from the code. It directly affects the small home builder anxious to save wherever he can. The code subcommittee outlawed wall board in other respects several months ago.

Bryan Dolton, business agent for the plasterers' union, local No. 5, readily admitted that the plasterers had recommended a change in the old section. Plasterers would lose business if wall board became a popular material but Dolton said this was not why the recommendation was made. He stressed the sanitary and fire resistive values of plaster for dwellings. There have been many complaints that the interests of labor and material manufacturers were causing Chicago's new code to be far less liberal as adopted by the council than as drafted by the experts.

The city council, during its session, passed three additional chapters of the new building code. Only one chapter remains to be passed.

DEWEY'S RACKET TIE-UP CHARGES DENIED BY DODGE

New York, Aug. 3.—[Special.]—Former District Attorney William C. Dodge today called his successor, Thomas E. Dewey, a character assassin motivated by political ambition.

Dodge denied he ever was influenced, intimidated, or bribed by any of the defendants in the 100 million dollar a year policy racket indictment on which James J. Hines, Tammany leader and Dodge's political sponsor, goes to trial this month.

Dodge, Magistrate Hulon Capshaw, and the late Magistrate Francis J. Erwin were accused by Dewey in a bill of particulars given to Hines yesterday.

Although Dewey yesterday revetled the names of only three persons, it was made clear that before the trial, or during the trial, additional names will be added, possibly in an amended bill of particulars.

CounterfeiterPleadsGuilty; Aids U. S. in Trial of Pal

Walter Thompson of Sheridan, La Salle county, pleaded guilty to counterfeiting in federal court here yesterday. Judge J. Leroy Adair of Springfield, who presided, deferred sentence, and Thompson took the witness stand against Sam Causa of La Salle, on trial on the same charge. Causa's case went to the jury late in the day. A third defendant, Joseph Diamond, pleaded not guilty. The three men were arrested as a result of the passing of fifty counterfeit $10 bills in La Salle county.

MORE PURGE FAILURES.

Congressman Howard W. Smith of the 8th Virginia district was only annoyed by the White House purge which tried to keep him from going back to congress. Smith was put on the blacklist by the young members of the White House politburo, James Roosevelt, Tommy Corcoran, and Ben Cohen, and by the C. I. O. Alexandria, the new home town of John L. Lewis, is in the district. Smith carried Alexandria 3 to 1. That was his ratio throughout the constituency.

The young members of the politburo selected William E. Dodd Jr., son of the former ambassador to Germany, to beat Smith. His defeat would be an admonition against Virginia independence in congress. Neither Senator Glass nor Senator Byrd could be blacklisted because neither was a candidate this year. But the young purgers could carry the war into Virginia by going after Mr. Smith, and if they got him it would be a warning to the other Virginians to do what they were told hereafter or retire to private life.

If Mr. Farley hadn't been unwise enough to stick his chin out in Pennsylvania just in time to get it rapped by the defeat of Tom Kennedy, the C. I. O. candidate for the Democratic nomination for governor, he might be critical of the operations of the young gentlemen who are leading the White House to so many defeats, but he hasn't done so well himself and Mr. Roosevelt's own black list still has to score off a victim.

In Iowa the young thunderbolt throwers had the aid of Mr. Hopkins of WPA in the attempt to defeat Senator Gillette, who won easily. The Indiana purgers surrendered to Senator Van Nuys. In Virginia the politburo tried the Public Works department as well as the PWA and brought Mr. Ickes in to help. The result was that Mr. Dodd was defeated by a 3 to 1 vote and Congressman Smith, who told the voters that he would continue to use his own judgment in congress, breezed in without much of an effort.

Senator Bennett Champ Clark of Missouri, who was up near the top of Mr. Roosevelt's senatorial black list because of his opposition to the court bill, was renominated and the only thing the New Dealers have to congratulate themselves about is their prudence. Senator Clark was marked for liquidation but the purgers, having undertaken to find somebody that they thought would have a show against him, decided that the prospects were not very good. The best information they could get convinced them that if they tried to take the senator's toga away from him they would come out of the campaign without their own shirts. Rather than take this licking they retired from the scene and did not conspicuously commit themselves to carrying out the original purpose, which was to keep Senator Clark from going back to Washington.

It has become apparent that Mr. Roosevelt's purpose to throw all the conservatives out of the Democratic party will not have plain sailing. He cannot denounce men as public enemies and assure their defeat. He cannot heatedly condemn a man who has used independent judgment and thereby insure the defeat of that candidate. The blacklisted candidates have had to win against all the resources of which the administration can make full political use. The federal funds support the purge. Nevertheless it is not being successful.

Senator Sheppard of the congressional campaign committee keeps on saying that the political practices where federal money is used are deplorable, that the conditions imperil the right of the people to a free and unpolluted ballot, and that the facts should arouse the conscience of the country. Senator Sheppard is a Democrat. He is getting his information from investigators at work in the states in which the contests are hottest. A great scandal is developing all over the country, but the men responsible for it apparently don't care if the deluge does come after them.

In Kansas the Republicans were worried for fear the voters might fall for the Rev. Gerald B. Winrod, who was accused of Nazi sympathies and intolerance. The Republican national chairman, John Hamilton, urged the state party not to give the ticket such an erratic nomination for the senate and sensible Republicans were gratified when Mr. Winrod ran third in the primaries.

The revolution is not polling a heavy vote in the campaign of retaliation and revenge. The people do not seem to favor it.

FOR HOUSEWIVES, IF ANY.

The market reporters say that apples are plentiful and cheap. A great deal of garden truck has been favored by the abundant rains—more than abundant if your cellar walls have been leaking—and prices are attractive to thrifty buying. The ideal housewife used to watch the market and, when fruits hit the level she liked, it was preserving day in the household. Presumably all housewives are ideal housewives, although space must be left for an exception which might prove that some of them aren't housewives at all. Where the species has ceased to exist there will be no interest in produce or its prices.

With apples plentiful and cheap the girls ought to be putting up apple butter. When tomatoes come flooding into the market they ought to be putting up tomato butter. The chances are they won't be. The further chance is that few of them know how to make tomato butter and, despite what Vox Pop may have to say in the matter, probably few of them know how to make apple butter. And there may be several small boys around the house who are mighty glad they don't know how. If they did it might be the job of the kids to sit at the end of a long stirring pole and keep the butter from burning on the bottom of a copper kettle.

They don't have copper kettles any more and wouldn't know where to put them if they did have. The housewife used to say that if the butter burned on the bottom of a copper kettle it was spoiled for future use because it would quickly burn again. The kid at the end of the stick usually had a great many more things to think about than the apple or tomato butter. For ten minutes or so he could keep his mind on the pleasure of eating it, but even that would evaporate as an attraction and there was nothing to do but stir and stir, and with the mind a mile or so somewhere else.

Were the canning housewives responsible for the great improvement of methods and product in the canning industry or did the canning industry develop as it has because the canning housewife ceased to exist? Whatever the answer may be, the housewife now seems to prefer to find the apple butter, the damson plum preserves, and all the rest of the truck for winter use on the grocer's shelves rather than on her own. The telephone will do all the preserving she has to worry about. She hasn't the utensils, she probably hasn't got the recipes, and if she wanted to store up the home produce for winter she wouldn't have any place to do so. A housewife she is.

THE NEW WAR.

A few weeks ago, when King George was paying his ceremonial visit to Paris, some of the alleged experts on international affairs said the reports of growing tension between Russia and Japan were to be explained as German inventions. The Germans were supposed to have fabricated the story to frighten the British and thus weaken the Anglo-French alliance. Russia is France's ally. If Russia and Japan go to war, Britain might find herself drawn into it against her will by her French alliance.

Subsequent events have mocked this ingenious theory. The tension is not imaginary but real as, indeed, it has been for several years and it has led in the last few days to a series of military operations in which some hundreds, if not thousands, of Russian and Japanese soldiers have been killed. Russian air squadrons have bombed strategic centers in Corea. In the pre-Kellogg era these events already would have resulted in a declaration of war by one side or the other.

The seriousness of the conflict cannot yet be determined. Meanwhile each side is seeking to portray the other as the aggressor and, as the facts are obscured, one can only guess at what has happened. It would seem most improbable that Japan, with her heavy involvement in China, would deliberately invite a conflict with Russia at this moment, unless the Japanese are convinced that Russian military and naval power in Siberia is negligible. The Japanese may have information about the morale and the equipment of the Russian forces which we do not possess in equal detail. Perhaps there is a precedent in the fact that the Japanese started their invasion of China only a few weeks after Stalin shot his generals. That act must have been interpreted in Japan as a signal of Russian disorganization and impotence. Perhaps the Japanese have more information of the same sort today.

The other theory is at least equally plausible. Stalin may deliberately have postponed his attack on Japan until she became so heavily involved in China that she could not back out of that war to concentrate upon the soviets. Now he has made or seized an occasion for a war which he can approve as a means of checking what he regards as Japanese capitalist-imperialism and at the same time of encouraging the spread of communism in China.

We may have long to wait before we can know whether either of these explanations is correct. Meanwhile the world has been presented with another war which has not been formally declared but is none the less real for the omission. We have already had such wars in Ethiopia, Spain, and China.

Sentimental pacifists are to be credited with this rather recent development. They gave us the Kellogg pact which outlawed war as an instrument of policy. The nation which declares war is therefore branded at once as an outlaw. The pact provided no machinery for dealing with offenders but it did imply an obligation on neutrals to take some kind of punitive action. Nations which fight without declaring war may therefore hope to postpone or avoid complications with neutrals.

The pacifists in this country succeeded, also, in obtaining legislation which forbids us to send military supplies to a belligerent. The operation of these and similar laws can be forestalled in some degree by failure to declare war. There is no doubt that a nation which has declared war is a belligerent, but in the absence of a declaration some doubt may exist.

War is at best a brutal business, but over the years its worst savageries have been somewhat mitigated by the law of nations. The bombarding of open towns, the shooting of prisoners, the poisoning of wells, and the bombing of hospitals are all against the rules and quite frequently nations at war have observed the code. Nowadays there is no code because there is no war, legally speaking. The lid is off. Anything goes.

The wishful thinking of pacifists has promoted this nightmare. They thought they could prevent wars by denouncing them in treaties and laws. Instead, the pacifists have made wars easier to start and more barbarous in their conduct.

JEFFERSON NICKEL DESIGN.

[Illinois State Journal.]

The prize winning design for the new Jefferson nickel has been altered by order of the federal fine arts commission. One of the changes made by the commission was in the style of lettering on the coin. Originally the letters were akin to the slim, graceful type without serifs seen widely in newspapers and magazines with modern faces.

The commission compelled the artist to use the classical Roman characters that have been used on coins for decades. The Roman characters are more familiar and therefore, perhaps, easier to read than the artist's own letters. But who reads the lettering on a five cent piece? Who must glance at the inscription to see the worth of the coin?

The lettering on coins, as well as on public buildings, is purely decorative. As such, the characters should be expressive of the contemporary American spirit. There is no more reason for imitating the Romans in this respect than there would be for modeling our automobiles after the chariots of Ben Hur's day. The coin is to honor Thomas Jefferson, not Julius Cæsar.

1814 Reminder.

Lord MacMillan, baron of Abnerfeldy and lord of appeals and ordinary, who with Lady MacMillan is stopping with the John H. Wigmores at the Lake Shore Athletic club, was chatting with the press. He was discussing London as the intellectual and cultural capital of the world in possession of treasures from all parts of the world to which scholars have access.

"You know London is the only capital in the world that has never been sacked," he pointed out.

"Yes, Washington was burned once," murmured a reporter.

LAMENT.

Love will never come again:
This I sighed, and wept,
Knowing love had slipped away
Slyly, while I slept.

Lilacs blossomed, asters waned,
Ere I ceased to grieve:
Love came back at fall of leaf . . .
Will he never leave?

Ghosts as persistent and authentic as castle haunting specters of the old world haunt a plant on the edge of a quarry near Chicago. The men on the dog watch are hesitant to go outside the plant and none of them want to go out in the dark on the rim of the quarry. Finally, inquiry from the plant manager elicited a hesitant explanation. A laborer who had been killed several months before was haunting the spot at night. He had been killed on the "dinky," the small quarry railroad. Now any night he can be seen walking along the ties, holding his head and moaning, the workers say. Some one reports seeing a ghost about once a week. Last week came the most convincing story of an apparition. One of the men went down to a shed in the quarry where the compressed air machinery is stationed to begin his shift in broad daylight. He reappeared immediately, screaming as he came dashing out of the shed, face livid. When he was calmer he told his story. A man had been killed in the shed some weeks ago. When he walked in the worker had seen the dead man sitting there beside the compressor.

"When I came in he looked up and frowned and said, 'Get the hell out of here. This is my job!'" said the trembling worker.

More About Grandmother.

Here is what one "girl of today" remembers about her grandmother. . . . When we entered the home of my grandmother and grandfather (may he live to be 125), we usually found her either on the couch peering through thin rimmed gold glasses at a book of Bible legends or in the kitchen. And how we loved the goodies that came out of that kitchen. Round kichlach with poppy seeds, tagelach with raisins, covered with honey.

There was nothing dull or oldish about my grandmother. She went to picnics and card parties and charity affairs until the day she became ill. We never knew how very good she had been to others until afterwards. Among those who came to bid her good-by were the families she had given milk to for many years. "A good deed is a real deed when it is not talked about," she would tell us. But somehow, we found out that it was she who purchased the Golden Key which opened the door to the Douglas Park Day and Night nursery many years ago.

She presided over the family discussion with dignity and gave sage advice to all those who asked her opinion. She was the first in our minds in both joy and sorrow. Was a child or grandchild sick, she was at the bedside at once. Every new baby was greeted tenderly with much happiness. She never forgot a birthday or a coming graduation.

Everybody really loved her and on Sabbath day, Saturday, her home was the meeting place of our entire clan. A star really fell from heaven when she died.

Swedish Grandmother.

We never met our Grandmother, but we knew her as a little old lady who lived in Sweden, and whose children had all come to America. We knew her as the writer of jolly, long letters, and as the weaver of fine linens. She embroidered gay tablecloths for her daughters, and she knit fine, warm sweaters for her grandchildren.

She figured largely in our mother's fond, homesick recollections of Sweden. Our favorite tale was the one of the little boy who called at a neighbor's cottage to see the new baby who had been christened Emma Kristina. His name was Lilla Gustaf. He looked at the new baby and said that was his sweetheart—he'd marry her when he grew up. He did. That was our grandpa.

You never know where the jitterbug is going to bite. . . . The other evening Rudolph Ganz, behind the scenes in the Grant park band shell, was listening to the introduction that would bring him to the podium. As he waited the distinguished pianist-composer-conductor executed a lively bit of truckin', interspersed with a few difficult tap steps.

* * *

There are many tales concerning Mr. Ganz's amiability. Recently on a hot night he turned to a group backstage and asked if they thought it would be all right if he doffed his coat for the performance.

"Sure, whatever you do would be all right with your audience," came the answer. "If you like, take off your shoes."

Herb Carlin, major domo of the concerts, caught only the last part of the sentence.

"For God's sake, don't ask him to do that," he groaned. "He's so obliging, he will!"

BLEEDING FROM THE STOMACH.

BLEEDING from any part of the body may be attended with great consternation. Still one should not jump at conclusions. If a little blood is expectorated its source may be the delicate lining of the nasal passages. In that case no alarm need be felt. But if one coughs up a quantity which is definitly from the lungs the incident calls for an immediate search for possible pulmonary disease. Again, if half a cupful is vomited we have every reason to believe that we are facing a ruptured blood vessel in an ulcer, or hemorrhage from the upper portion of the digestive tract.

Let us assume that blood from the stomach has been identified. Does the symptom spell disaster? Strange as it may seem, the number of deaths is exceedingly small, for nature is kind. As the flow proceeds from the broken vessel the pressure falls, and if quiet can be enjoined clotting will follow. In 677 cases reported by A. F. Hurst only six succumbed from loss of blood. In a series of twenty-three cases studied by L. J. Witts not a single fatality resulted.

As a dispensary physician I remember a carpenter who appeared one afternoon, stating that he had vomited a large portion of blood in the last twenty-four hours. Naturally I urged that he go to the hospital at once, explaining that the bleeding probably came from a peptic ulcer. His wife, who was with him, insisted that she could take care of him just as well at home. All they wanted was some medicine that would stop the oozing. With many misgivings I wrote a prescription for a little laudanum, and instructed him to go to bed and have complete rest. Much to my surprise, two weeks later the chap returned to the clinic looking unusually well. He said that he had had no more vomiting after taking the marvelous remedy. With no recurrence we felt safe enough, a month or so afterward, to make some X-ray plates. These disclosed a sizable ulcer near the stomach outlet, which healed in due time without further symptoms.

In such circumstances an ideal plan of management is that described by Witts, embodying a far more liberal diet then heretofore has been thought wise. It must be recognized that starvation will not keep the stomach inactive; in fact, an empty stomach goes through numerous so-called hunger contractions. The general plan, therefore, is to give food—liquid or semi-solid—at least five times daily, with some mild alkali. At the end of fourteen days patients are permitted out of bed.

The dietary consists of a five-ounce allowance of milk, three or four eggs beaten up in milk, strained orange or tomato juice, boiled fish, creamed vegetables, and fruit purée. The total calories on the first day are sufficient to nourish a strong, well-built man, and the extra fluid is designed to replace that which has been lost. On the second day the calories are above 3,000, and on the third and subsequent days, above 3,500. This marks an abrupt change from the earlier limited régime, and is not only more favorable as far as life is concerned but is associated with fewer complications.

Occasionally transfusion is necessary, but this must be used cautiously as it has a tendency to provoke further leakage from the broken vessels. The rule is that, should the hemoglobin [red coloring matter of the blood] fall below forty per cent, the pulse rate rise to 140 per minute, or the blood pressure drop lower than 90 systolic, transfusion is indicated.

There is always danger that the loss of fluid from the circulation may be so great that collapse and shock may ensue. When we realize that the average adult should take about six pints in each twenty-four hours, most of which is excreted via the lungs and the skin, we understand the importance of restoring this liquid. Far preferable to injecting considerable amounts beneath the skin or into a vein, the so-called drip method devised by J. B. Murphy merits its widespread popularity.

After all, then, no one need be frightened at signs of hemorrhage from the stomach. Calmly put the patient to bed and call the physician [the attitude of members of the family has much to do with the sick person's recovery]. If there is great thirst, small pieces of cracked ice may be given by mouth, even before the doctor arrives. Within a short while the administration of fluid by rectum may be begun, and shortly thereafter feeding may be started.

GOOD FOR MAN AND BEAST.

Mrs. E. G. writes:

Your article on the importance of calcium struck home in my case.

I am 54 years old and have suffered for years with intense headaches. Large quantities of aspirin were required to give even moderate relief. My physician agreed with your point of view, and I have been taking calcium intermittently for several months. All my distressing symptoms have vanished.

I have a further confession to make, and please do not laugh. My hobby is caring for my wonderful Pekingese dogs. Every so often these animals will develop skin lesions which the veterinarian has been unable to prevent. Of course, I know there is no universal drug for all ailments. Nevertheless, after my own good fortune, I began feeding calcium tablets to my pets, and, lo and behold, the eruptions cleared up. Can you explain?

REPLY.

Most dogs need and obtain a far larger quantity of calcium than is demanded by the human body. Their teeth enable them to chew bones, which constitute an excellent source of this mineral. Beef bones or bone meal will probably serve as well as the tablets. House pets occasionally lack a balanced diet, particularly as to sufficient bone-building material. With us humans the necessity for an adequate calcium reserve is acknowledged.

FRIEND NEARER RIGHT.

J. B. writes: We have had an argument about sun rays. I say that when the sun first strikes the body in the summer a complete set of chemical changes takes place. My friend says this is impossible. Who is right?

REPLY.

Your friend is nearer right. It is not a "complete set of changes" but some modifications, due to the influence of the ultraviolet rays on the skin.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

Writers should confine themselves to 200 or 300 words. Give full names and addresses. No manuscripts can be returned. Address Voice of the People, THE TRIBUNE.

WANTS A CIVIL SERVICE SHAKEUP.

Chicago, Aug. 1.—The citizens of Chicago should demand a thorough house cleaning in the civil service commission. The last several examinations for the board of health will serve as glaring examples of our particular brand of political chicanery, being held merely to take in a few friends and supporters of department heads already holding jobs as temporary appointees. If experience and training had really carried weight many others would have been declared eligible.

Chicago's civil service at present merely preserves in office misfits and ward politicians by giving them permanent tenure. Civic organizations, women's groups, the P.-T. A., and the average tax paying citizen can, through a vigorous campaign of publicity, break up the long circus at city hall.

Let us insist upon the resignation of the present commission; appointment of experts from our local universities to set up a truly selective test in each field, unbiased reading of papers, and final grading by men experienced in personnel selection. M. S. K.

ANOTHER NEW DEALER.

Chicago, July 30.—I salute S. V. B. of Libertyville for his stand against THE TRIBUNE in today's Voice of the People. For almost six years I had had the desire to write THE TRIBUNE about its editorials and cartoons on our hard working and beloved President. This article gave me the inspiration.

Why not, for the sake of clean politics, try to help the President in his efforts to better our economic and social conditions? The issue today is no longer the New Dealer against the old; it is the old dealer versus the people. Until THE TRIBUNE and all Republican leaders see the light as the people had seen in the star Roosevelt, the G. O. P. might just as well close shops. Yours for coöperation. L. V. T.

A HIGH SCHOOL WANTED.

Chicago, July 30.—The school board has acres of ground surrounding the Mason elementary school [1800 South Keeler avenue], and yet when our children become of high school age they must go miles away to the Farragut or Harrison high school.

More and more of our children are going to high school, so why not give them encouragement by building a school for them in their own territory?

The board of education has just received a grant of millions from the government, so this time they cannot put us off by saying "we have no funds." V. H.

LESSONS ON RIDING APPRECIATED.

Springfield, Ill., July 29.—This is to let you know that the Boots and Saddles club of Springfield appreciate and enjoy Capt. M. M. Corpening's lessons on riding in your SUNDAY TRIBUNE. They were much needed and we hope you will allow the captain to continue for a long time to come these excellent articles.

POLICY SHOP ANNOYS HER.

Chicago, July 30.—There is a policy shop in the rear of a barber shop at 6304½ Langley avenue. It is a disgrace to our neighborhood, and I understand they pay the police for protection. Everything goes on at this place. Is there no way it can be stopped? I have to pass this place every day. V. R.

O'LEARY SHACK A SHRINE?

Chicago, Aug. 2.—No truer words were ever written than the "city needs more parks," TRIBUNE headline of July 26.

After viewing the picture, "In Old Chicago," I made a visit to the scene of my younger days on De Koven street, a half block from where the catastrophe originated. Visiting the block bounded by De Koven, Jefferson, Taylor, and Clinton streets, I was amazed at the deterioration and disgusting housing conditions at this memorable spot.

Without much expense, considering the value of the land and ramshackle structures, the city of Chicago could apply some of its misdirected expenditures [WPA or otherwise] and evolve a park in this square that would be a blessing to the poor children in this vicinity and possibly renovate the house on the original location of the fire, which is fronted by a stone tablet placed by the Chicago Historical society.

Or better still, reconstruct, if possible, a genuine replica of the old O'Leary shack [Henry Ford has accomplished similar miracles in Michigan] as a memorial of the holocaust which started this city on the road to being one of the greatest in the world.

I hope more comment from the old west siders will start the ball rolling. Hark! Mayor Kelly, this is where some of the best Irish come from!

QUERY FOR HORAN AND GILL.

Chicago, Aug. 1.—Will you inform me when Chief Bailiff Al Horan of the Municipal court of Chicago last officiated in court? I would also like to have the public apprised of the number of days during the year of 1937 and up to and including July 1 of this year that he was in his office. The public as a whole would be better off if the elected officials, who are paid a lucrative salary, would devote more of their time to the administration of public affairs and less to petty political squabbles.

It is a by-word of people who have business in the bailiff's office that "Mr. Horan is not in" and "Mr. Horan is out of town." From the number of times he is out of town, I do not know whether he is elected to the Municipal court of Chicago or some other city.

In the last year I have also tried to contact Joe Gill, clerk in the Municipal court, and he likewise is never in, so what I have said of Chief Bailiff Al Horan also is applicable to Mr. Gill.

HOWARD THOMPSON.

THE SUBWAY PLANS.

Chicago, July 30.—Mr. Ickes is right in inquiring into the engineering aspects of our proposed subway. Since we are laying the foundation for what may be the sole means of urban transportation of the future, foresight should be used in planning it.

The acknowledged inadequacies of the Outer Drive bridge improvement are an instance of lax planning. That should be avoided in the development of the Chicago subway.

Would it not be well to extend the subway another mile north of Chicago avenue, with a possible later extension to the Center street elevated station?

The building of a four track subway along the entire length of North State street would also permit of the long contemplated widening and commercial development of this street. R. W. D.

THE TEXAS SPIRIT.

Dallas, Tex., July 30.—Having read wide newspaper comment on our nominee for governor, W. Lee O'Daniel, I regret that some of our good neighbor states do not know us better. I have known Texas people for 38 years, having visited practically every county in the state from two to four times a year since 1900. At no time have I ever seen our people take a governor's election more seriously. The voters did not look upon W. Lee O'Daniel as a Moses, but they did understand his language. They liked the clean, spiritual aspect which he gave to his campaign. They were also impressed with his capabilities and sincere reference to the Ten Commandments. Texas voters still believe in the truth of these commandments and accept them as a good standard for all people to live by, even men who seek and hold public office.

Yes, we like a little mountain music, beautiful poems, patriotic songs, and spiritual hymns. We hope our neighboring commentators come to see us some time. THOMAS E. ALEXANDER.

HIS NECK AND HIS MORALS.

Chicago, July 30.—An office worker complains about the condition of her employer's neck, and wishes he would be more particular. Why care—it's his neck? But here is a real complaint, something to grind one's teeth over. Why must a manager or head of a department show favoritism? Why the hard work and small pay for some and little work and good pay for another?

You can imagine how popular a girl is with such a stand-in, but do we dare to show it? Hardly, if we want our weekly wage.

Never mind his neck, young lady, if his morals are unimpeachable.

EXECUTION SALE.

Chicago, July 25.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—In June, 1924, I received a judgment against a woman who broke a large plate glass window in one of my store fronts with a brick. I had her arrested first and later was forced to sue her, too. She owns a frame cottage, six rooms, which is a homestead. It is clear of debt. Her husband died without leaving a will.

1. At that time my lawyer told me I could not foreclose without a $1,000 security deposit.

2. I have twice extended this security judgment, and now I must sue again. The clerk of the court tells me that this would be the last time and if this woman doesn't pay within the coming seven years it will be thrown out of court.

3. What can I do to secure this money? C. K.

1. If the judgment debtor occupies the premises of a homestead he will be entitled to a $1,000 homestead exemption. It seems probable that this is what was under discussion. If you could get an outsider to bid at the execution sale we see no necessity for you to make a security deposit.

2. We do not understand what you mean by this.

3. Put through the execution sale. The attorney whom you have employed is in a better position to advise you than we are. TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

COUNCIL VOTES FOR PWA AID ON STATE ST. SPAN

Action on Bridge Needed to Get Subway Grant.

The city council yesterday authorized an application to the Public Works administration for a $1,350,000 grant to pay part of the cost of a new State street bridge over the Chicago river.

The action was taken on the recommendation of Ald. J. M. Arvey [24th], chairman of the finance committee. His committee, he said, was informed that PWA officials insist that the city commit itself on the bridge as a condition of a federal subway grant. They are said to fear that delay in starting the bridge would delay the subway work so that it could not be completed within two years, a condition of PWA projects.

$3,500,000 Bonds Sold.

The application for a bridge grant will be made on the existing plans for a 108 foot structure, although it is not the intention to build a bridge that wide. Voters in 1930 approved a 3½ million dollar bond issue for the bridge but construction has been delayed. The bonds were sold and the money is held in a special fund.

Oscar Hewitt, commissioner of public works, told the finance committee that the proposed State street subway cannot be built under the river until the existing structure is torn down. The bridge foundation is not strong enough to permit tunneling below it.

Hewitt said the cost of the 108 foot structure, exclusive of expense of acquiring property rights, would be about $3,000,000. The deadline for making application for PWA grants is Sept. 1 and the only plans now ready are those calling for a wide bridge, Hewitt said.

Objects to "Easy Money."

Ald. James J. McDermott [14th], told the council he did not understand why the city was asking federal money for the bridge when the necessary cash was already available.

"Let the city go ahead with the work itself under its own rights and forget this easy money," he said. "The fact that we are getting Christmas presents from PWA does not appeal to me."

If the PWA bridge grant is obtained, it is estimated there will be a surplus of more than a million dollars in the State street bridge fund after all expenses are paid. This surplus, under a 1935 law, could be used for any of four purposes. These are construction of bridges, extensions of street lighting, building of fire and police stations, and payment of general bond obligations.

Issue 30 New Subpenas in Grand Jury Milk Quiz

Thirty new subpenas were issued yesterday in the federal grand jury's investigation of the milk business in the Chicago area. Names of those subpenaed were kept secret, but it was reported that they are officials of the milk distributing companies.

DELAY MAY COST CITY $1,251,000 FOR WACKER PROJECT

The city council was notified yesterday by the board of local improvements that Chicago is in danger of losing a $1,251,000 grant from the Public Works administration. The grant was made to aid in extending Wacker drive to Field boulevard.

The city council accepted the grant last month but appointed a subcommittee headed by Ald. James B. Bowler [25th] to study the advisability of extending the drive from Lake street to Cermak road instead.

Meanwhile final plans have not been submitted to the PWA for the east extension. According to the board of local improvements work must start on the project Aug. 29 or the grant probably will be rescinded.

The city council yesterday accepted PWA grants totaling $6,800,295 for three other projects, including $5,415,775 for the new water filtration plant on the south side, $114,545 for a grade separation in Drightwood avenue under the tracks of the Milwaukee railroad, and $270,000 for a viaduct in Laramie avenue from Lexington avenue to Roosevelt road.

SUBWAY JURY'S FIRST MEETING SET FOR MONDAY

The engineering board named by the Public Works administration to study Chicago's proposed subways will hold its first meeting here on Monday, Joshua D'Esposito, one of the four members, said yesterday.

The board's findings as to the adequacy and desirability of the subways will determine whether Chicago gets a federal grant of $14,328,000 for the project, according to PWA Administrator Harold L. Ickes.

The other members of the board are Col. Henry M. Waite, Robert Ridgway and Henry Brinckeroff. All have Chicago engineering experience. The board is to have offices in the Civic Opera building. It is to make its report by Oct. 1.

HEAT OF SCANDAL BARES COOLNESS IN POLICE RANKS

Detective Lists His Boss, Others He Dislikes.

Even without the heat generated by the recent Town Hall police scandal, it appeared yesterday that the boys at the station house have not been one happy family for some time.

This at least was the impression given by Earl Flannery. Flannery and a fellow detective, Frank McKune, are being tried by the police trial board on six civil service charges. These resulted from the alleged holdup of a handbook employé last Feb. 26.

Flannery and McKune are accused of freeing Kenneth Peters and a man known only as Tip, after their arrest by two uniformed policemen. With the exception of Peters and Tip, who is a fugitive, every one involved in the case was acquitted in the Criminal court. Peters was fined $100 on an assault charge.

Allman and Captains Attend.

Flannery took the stand yesterday under the chill gaze of Police Commissioner Allman, Supervising Captain Joseph Goldberg, and Capt. Patrick O'Connell of the Town Hall station. They were spectators at the trial.

Wendell E. Green, colored, a member of the city civil service commission, which comprises the trial board, asked if Flannery and Capt. O'Connell were on good terms. The captain ordered the two detectives suspended when the scandal was disclosed.

"We haven't been on good terms for three years, ever since he came there," replied Flannery. "In that time I doubt if we have spoken on ten occasions."

Blames "Personal Reasons."

"Why does he dislike you?" asked Green.

"Personal reasons," replied Flannery. "I know people in the district just as well as he does. Mr. O'Connell and Mr. Goldberg have never had much time for me. You can say that I do not like Mr. O'Connell."

Flannery added that he also did not like Policemen Peter Frank or Harold Thompson, who arrested Peters and Tip, and who testified at the criminal trial against the detectives. And he does not like their squad leader, Policeman Irving Smith, Flannery said.

After McKune repeated the testimoney that he gave in his criminal trial the board closed the proceedings and took the case under advisement.

BARRINGTON GETS GEMS BACK, BUT LOSES ITS JEWEL

Nellie the Cook's Home Yields Treasures.

If it hadn't been for a little piece of cloth Nellie Scott might still be helping the busy wives of Barrington with their dinners, their clothes, and their children. But the scrap of cloth was on a closet floor, where it had no business to be.

The owner of the remnant was Mrs. T. L. G. Duell, wife of a La Salle street broker, whose home is at Brinker and Dundee roads, near the suburb. She remembered that she had carefully placed the scrap in a box with others to be made, some day, into a quilt. And the box was stored high on a shelf of the closet out of reach.

Scrap, Studs, Then Inquiry.

But, after all, Nellie was a jewel and the best cook in Barrington, so a little curiosity might be pardonable. Nevertheless, that night, the night of July 26, when Mr. Duell wanted his shirt studs and they were gone, his wife thought of that scrap of cloth.

She went to see Nellie. The home at 127 West Lincoln street was neat as a pin. But there was an unusual lot of bric-à-brac, obviously expensive. On a table was a pair of gold and pearl opera glasses that Mrs. Duell knew must have cost at least $100.

So, sorrowfully, she went after a search warant. Nellie was arrested for grand larceny and went to the county jail. None of her five sons and daughters was involved. Her husband, Roy, on a Colorado dairy farm, was not told.

Eleven other housewives who had hired Nellie at various times were called. Four appeared yesterday at the Morton Grove county highway police station. Mrs. Duell found a $400 diamond bracelet of hers had been recovered. Mrs. G. M. Currier of 621 East Main street identified watches, a $50 fur, and silverware.

Mrs. Burton Mudge of Old Dundee road found a locket, a diamond, and the opera glasses. Mrs. William Horne of Otis road went on to Elgin to identify her $2,400 diamond ring in a pawnshop. Mrs. A. C. West of 617 Sycamore street identified a $450 diamond pin.

More to Claim Property.

Others who will be in later to regain diamonds, other jewels, silverware, fifteen handbags, and trinkets are Mrs. Alice De Tarnowski, 609 East Main street; Mrs. J. M. Cunningham of Donlea road; Mrs. E. W. Buckley, 215 East Hillside street; Mrs. Frank Watt II., 541 South Hough road; Mrs. J. H. Manheimer of Dundee road; Mrs. Robert B. Scallon, 131 West Main street, and Mrs. G. A. Buffington of Donlea road.

There is even a large coin collection awaiting a claimant. More jewelry was found in Elgin and Waukegan pawnshops.

Mrs. Scott was taken yesterday before Justice Elmer J. Tone at Morton Grove. Her case was continued a week. She went back to the county jail.

HUNT KIDNAPER FOR SLAYING OF S. DAKOTA GIRL

Sioux Falls, S. D., Aug. 3.—[Special.]—Federal agents and police intensified their search today for Earl Young, gunman and kidnaper. They wanted to question him about the slaying of Betty Schnaidt, 17 years old, Sioux Falls high school graduate.

The girl's body was found, bound and gagged yesterday, near St. Charles, 140 miles from here. She disappeared Thursday night under mysterious circumstances when engaged to stay with the young son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Nelson in their home here. A towel from the Nelson home was found knotted around the girl's neck.

Young, who is 28 years old, is suspected, Attorney General Clair Roddewig said, as the result of his identification from a picture as the man who abandoned a stolen car near where the body was found. In the car police found a ball of cord similar to that used to bind the girl's wrists and legs.

Roddewig said Young is wanted by federal agents for kidnaping a Louisville, Ky., girl on July 12. He has served prison sentences in Pennsylvania and escaped from jail several months ago when awaiting trial.

110 GET $5 FINES FOR STREET CAR TRANSFER FRAUD

There have been 110 arrests and the same number of convictions for the fraudulent use of street car transfers the last few days, Surface Lines officials announced last night.

Most of the arrests were made at two corners, Madison and Halsted streets and Roosevelt road and Halsted street. In each case the offender was fined $5 and costs by Judge Leroy Hackett of the Des Plaines street court.

Many of those convicted openly approached passengers alighting from cars and asked them for their transfers. Police last night pointed out that it is unlawful to sell, exchange or give away transfers.

Harrington; Jesse Davis, rape, sentenced to five years in the penitentiary by Judge Rudolph Desort; George Hill and David Yancy, robbery with a gun, sentenced to one year to life in the penitentiary, and Guy Pisatelli, rape, sentenced to five years in the penitentiary by Judge Robert C. O'Connell.

Trial of Robert Nixon, charged with the brickbat murder of Mrs. Florence Johnson, is expected to go to the jury today.

Nixon, who is colored, repudiated his confession yesterday and denied from the witness stand that he had ever been in the Johnson apartment at 4631 Lake Park avenue, where Mrs. Johnson was slain May 26, until police took him there after the murder. He told the jury in Judge John C. Lewe's Criminal court that police forced him to confess.

Nixon was on the stand most of the day. Under cross-examination by Wilbert F. Crowley, first assistant state's attorney, he frequently said he could not remember where and how he spent the days preceding the murder.

TVA'S SUBSIDIES FOR 7 COLLEGES TOLD AT INQUIRY

Expert Questioned About Fertilizer Activities.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Knoxville, Tenn., Aug. 3.—[Special.]—Subsidies of $1,700,000 paid to seven land grant colleges by the Tennessee Valley authority were aired today by the congressional committee investigating TVA.

J. C. McAmis, TVA director of agricultural relations, described the relations between TVA and the land grant colleges, which are agricultural colleges, in demonstration and experimentation work on fertilizer and soil building.

Dr. Arthur E. Morgan, deposed TVA chairman, has charged that Director Harcourt A. Morgan, the fertilizer man of the TVA board, has built up a streamlined political machine through the county agents and college subsidy route and that the system is a powerful political burocracy.

Slows Up on Figures.

McAmis at the outset gave a lecture on fertilizer, soil depletion, and soil improvement with all the zest of an enthusiast. When it came to figures on costs and expenditures, however, his pace slowed down. Questions by Francis Biddle, committee counsel, and Representative Charles A. Wolverton [R., N. J.] seemed to run in opposite directions and be confusing.

At one point Wolverton remarked: "It seems the sky's the limit, and it's getting higher all the time. Let's get the figures."

"Yes," said Representative Ewing Thomason [D., Tex.], who was in the chair, "we're going around in circles. I'll declare a five minute recess to try to get our bearings."

Fertilizer Data Given.

After a ten minute huddle between McAmis and Biddle, the investigators were given figures by McAmis showing that his department since TVA was created had spent $2,413,614 up to last June 30.

In the last four years 113,278 tons of fertilizer have been distributed. Of this 112,324 tons was triple superphosphate.

Under contracts to aid in the fertilizer demonstration work, $1,705,237 has been given to land grant colleges. Up to 1936 there were seven of these, all in the Tennessee valley. Since then four states have been added, Illinois, Iowa, West Virginia, and Louisiana.

Distribution of the $1,705,237 among the eleven land grant colleges was given by McAmis as follows:

Alabama	$307,304
Georgia	108,313
Kentucky	77,289
Mississippi	94,964
North Carolina	162,327
Tennessee	813,985
Virginia	123,202
Iowa	1,744
Illinois	1,875
Louisiana	2,268
West Virginia	59

McAmis said that the land grant colleges contributed to the agricultural projects by making available for the experimental work in fertilizer, their laboratories, equipment, and personnel.

Other Activities Described.

John P. Ferris, TVA director of agricultural industries, described experiments and demonstrations aimed at popularizing electricity in rural regions on a self-sustaining basis.

Experiments under his department have cost $850,000 in five years, he testified, and annual costs are now running about $280,000. He said a study of 6,000 families affected by TVA reservoirs showed a yearly family cash income of $100 to $300 a year. Lack of income, he said, is one barrier to be overcome in the TVA area.

Ferris described an experiment in frozen strawberries for which TVA bought a $33,000 barge to ship them to market. Dr. Morgan, in his testimony two weeks ago, challenged this experiment as an effort to hook strawberry growing and soil erosion with navigation and commerce.

TUSSOCK MOTH CATERPILLARS IN TREES AGAIN

Tussock moth caterpillars, tree pests, are beginning to appear in the city and suburbs, entomologists of the park district reported yesterday. Home owners are finding them gnawing away at the leaves on their trees.

Entomologists said they are not so prevalent as in former years. Caretakers in the parks and home owners are learning to protect their trees by using banks of sticky material around the tree trunks about four feet above ground. This prevents the tussock moth caterpillars from crawling into the trees. If they already are feeding on the tree leaves they may be poisoned by spraying the foliage with arsenate of lead.

The caterpillars are easily recognized by their vermilion red heads and four cream colored tufts, resembling fine toothbrush bristles, on their backs. They are about one and a half inches long.

DANES EXPECT SHARE OF BABS' 5 & 10 FORTUNE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

COPENHAGEN, Denmark, Aug. 3.—Danish fiscal authorities today expected a sizable windfall in taxes from the Woolworth five and ten fortune as the result of a settlement made last week on Lance, son of Count and Countess Haugwitz-Reventlow.

The countess, formerly Barbara Hutton, Woolworth heiress, made the settlement as part of a separation agreement which she and the count signed in London. The sum given the boy, who is 2 years old, was not revealed.

Under Danish law Lance will have an absolute right, upon his mother's death, to share in her estate. It is expected in Copenhagen, however, that the countess will seek to regain her American citizenship. Since this might complicate the boy's inheritance, the money settlement was exacted for Lance and is to be executed immediately.

MUCH COOLER IS PROGRAM TODAY, WITH N. W. WIND

Winds that are expected to shift around to the northwest will make it much cooler in Chicago today, according to the forecaster. The maximum temperature is supposed to be about 82.

Gulf breezes straight from the south yesterday stopped the torrid blast that was expected to send the mercury to a new high for the year. Instead it reached only 91, a degree under the previous peak of 92, set Tuesday and July 25. The humidity was about normal, 56 per cent.

Policeman's Shots Halt Riot at Softball Game

Park Policeman Joseph Kolar had to fire two warning shots last evening to stop a riot at a softball game in Douglas park between the Judge Bonelli Boosters and the Zahrotsky Brothers' Braves. The trouble broke out over the decision of an umpire on a base runner. Players and spectators were soon swinging fists. Policeman Kolar arrested Edward Alexander, 24 years old, 1342 South Fairfield avenue, and William Chernowski, 23, of 2719 West 16th street, players.

Son of Slain Policeman Drowns in Lake Wisconsin

John Sullivan, 17 years old, drowned yesterday in Lake Wisconsin, near Merrimac, Wis., where he was vacationing. He stepped into a deep water hole while pushing a rowboat from shore. Friends said he was the son of Policeman Arthur Sullivan of 1953 South St. Louis avenue, who was shot to death on Jan. 15, 1937, by Joseph Schuster, paroled convict, later executed.

POTTER PALMER FILES REPLY TO HIS WIFE'S SUIT

Sarasota, Fla., Aug. 3.—[Special.]—Potter Palmer, member of the well known Chicago family, filed an answer and a cross bill here today to the divorce suit of his third wife, Pauline Warren Palmer.

He charged his wife with excessive intemperance and declared that on certain occasions, both at home and in public, she has exhibited a quarrelsome nature. He denied he left his wife. Instead, his bill explained, he had gone to a hospital for treatment as the result of a "misunderstanding" in a local night club.

In his bill Palmer asks that he be granted a divorce without any provision for payment of alimony. The charges contained in Mrs. Palmer's suit have never been made public, but it has been indicated she based her suit on cruelty and desertion.

Polo Tourney Will Be Held at Oak Brook

BY JUDITH CASS.

THE intercircuit championship tournament of the United States Polo association which was held midst a round of parties and entertaining at the Oak Brook Polo club last summer is to be held there again this year.

The occasion will be even gayer this year, however, for there is to be a debut party at the club one afternoon during the championship play. It is the tea-dance Mr. and Mrs. James S. Knowlson will give on Sept. 9 for their daughter, Elizabeth. Just two years ago on the same day at the same club Mr. and Mrs. Knowlson introduced their elder daughter, Miss Mary Eustice Knowlson.

The Knowlsons and their debutante will not be here for the start of the tournament on Aug. 28. They are spending the summer at Hillsboro Springs, Va., and won't come home until after Labor day. Undoubtedly they will join their Hinsdale neighbors on the sidelines for the last few games of the tournament which ends Sept. 11. Meanwhile city and suburban polo enthusiasts are making engagements now to attend the games which will provide entertainment for stay-at-homes over the Labor day week-end.

The championship teams of the six circuits, into which the nation is divided, will play at Oak Brook. Paul Butler, president of the Central Polo association, and James A. Hannah, president of the club, are in charge of the tournament. The club has seven polo fields. The white clubhouse, on a hill, overlooks all of them.

Mrs. C. Ross Cuthbert Leaves for California.

Mrs. C. Ross Cuthbert, who has been visiting her mother, Mrs. Hambleton Kirk in Lake Forest, left yesterday for the west, where she will visit the junior Byron Harveys in Santa Barbara, Cal. Early in September Mrs. Cuthbert will join her husband in New York and they will return to their home in England.

Mrs. Kirk will have her niece, Miss Jessica Hambleton, as a guest over the week-end. Miss Hambleton is spending the summer with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Chalkley J. Hambleton, at Fish Creek, Wis.

Miss Eleanor McClurg, who visited Mrs. Kirk during July, left a week ago to join her mother, Mrs. Freeman Hinckley, at Prouts Neck, Me.

Mrs. Adlai E. Stevenson will leave in a week for the east to visit her mother, Mrs. John Alden Carpenter, at Sunset Hill, the Carpenters' summer home in Beverly, Mass. Mrs. Stevenson's three children left on Monday to visit their grandmother. When Mrs. Stevenson returns in three weeks she will bring them home with her.

The Stevensons on Monday moved into the home they rebuilt east of Libertyville. There are still many things to be done and Mr. and Mrs. Stevenson do not expect to have the place finished until next spring. They will spend the winter in their Astor street apartment.

Pauline Palmer at Bar Harbor.

Miss Pauline Palmer has arrived in Bar Harbor to spend the remainder of the summer with her parents, the Potter Palmers. She has entered the annual Maritime tennis tournament of the Bar Harbor club, in which Bowen and William McCormick Blair Jr. also are entered. The Blairs are with their grandmother, Mrs. Joseph T. Bowen.

Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Carpenter and their children left yesterday on a trailer trip to Canada. They will be away until the end of the month.

Wash Apparel Reflects Gains in New Fabrics

BY MARCIA WINN.

There seemed to be no single fashion note, other than gayety, in the fall fashions shown in the national wash apparel show at the Palmer House last night.

It was, however, a startling showing in that it demonstrated how wide the field of synthetic fabrics has become. All the garments were described as washable, yet here, in a gay, mincing stream, came amazing taffetas, woolens, corduroys, sheers, and crêpes—all synthetic. And, of course, the once humble, but now glorified, cotton.

Intended for the medium pocketbook of the housewife, the business girl, the college student, few of the new styles were radical. Instead, such well proved favorites as the dirndl, the shirtwaist dress and the jumper frock were featured, but with various new twists.

Many of the dirndls, for instance, had skirts which button down the front. The shirtwaist dresses had double tiers of pockets on the blouse [which now has a full back]. The jumper dresses were tightly shirred at the waist and worn with very full taffeta blouses.

The 1,200 buyers gathered for the show paid noisy homage to the Scotch plaids which tripped down the runway every five minutes or so. Of brilliant colorings, some were termed "Loch Lomonds" and, in tribute to what swing music has done to a sober song, had swinging, plaited skirts. Pockets protruding below the belt also swung with the walk. One Scotch combination became almost regal, with tiny collar and belt of gold lether.

Smaller checks, on the shepherd's plaid order, were also popular. These, however, veered to the demure with tiny white collar and cuffars. Three tiers of pockets on closely fitted bodices made the bodice just one pocket after another.

Surprisingly the greatest applause came for a group of dresses intended, the announcer said, for the woman "of substantial proportions." They were quiet prints.

For campus wear subdued football colors were shown in flannels, corduroys, and jerseys. The flannels were tailored, almost severe except for a wicked flare to the skirts. One well received dirndl for the collegian was of navy and white plaid taffeta, with a row of scarlet buttons down the front.

But you can't have a wash apparel show without smocks and housecoats. In these the designers really did well, as did the mannequins. One model, wearing a dog-print, led—followed—an inquisitive Spitz.

And the housecoats? Full of flounces, and that's news.

This Is Party Day for Sally's Young Friends

BY SALLY JOY BROWN.

[Activities of the Sally Joy Brown department are sponsored by Tribune Charities, Inc.]

Party day again, boys and girls!

This afternoon 100 youngsters will come with me to be transported back to story book land. We'll see the beautiful princess, the bad fairy, and the good fairies who presented her with gifts, the young prince who rescued her from her plight, and all the other fascinating characters we read about in "The Sleeping Beauty."

All this will take place in the charming little Jack and Jill theater, where, under the direction of Marie Agnes Foley, a group of talented child actors will present the beloved old fairy-tale. It's going to be a delightful afternoon. I hope that all my guests will be prompt and will remember to bring their invitations.

If you haven't written in for your invitation to our next party, which will take place on Aug. 11, it's too late now. I'm going to read all the letters this morning and select the fifty boys and fifty girls who will go with me to see "Little Miss Broadway."

You won't have long to wait before you learn whether you've won an invitation. The good news will be printed in next SUNDAY'S CHICAGO TRIBUNE.

The Housewife

No matter how simple and plain a youngster's room is, nor how little can be spent on decorating it, a charming effect will result if one of the special nursery chintzes is used for full, ruffled draperies. And get enough for a crib cover or bedspread, too.

There is a wonderful blue chintz with lifelike wire haired terriers playing and racing across it. There is another with pale blue background and Kate Greenaway figures of little boys and girls in yellow and pink as the design. And a third chintz comes in a variety of background colors with funny animals disporting themselves all about.

If the child has grown beyond the age which enjoys nursery stories choose a chintz with little floral sprigs or with a nautical pattern. Or use polka dots or stripes.

Black Velvet Hats Welcome Despite Heat

BY RHEA SEEGER.

No August would ever sizzle through without significant showings of black velvet hats. These first arrivals do much more than create a desire for new headgear among the susceptible shoppers. These hats announce what's coming in millinery for early fall.

When your white and pastel tinted headgear begins to droop these new sable toned creations take the money. And, as usual, the smartest, sauciest affairs that have an unmistakable unusualness seldom play repeat engagements. The wise shopper grabs them hastily at first showing!

Among the startling creations are the wide brimmed, high crowned black velvets. These cover the eyeline with a flattering downward swoop. The high crowns keep them picturesque and anything but heavy looking despite the velvet. Yards of filmy black veiling again flatter the outlines of these rather simple pictur: hats. You wear these hats with thin black sheers, with the first fall satins, jerseys, or crêpes, with gold or silver costume jewelry for the only accents.

From whopping big hats to tiny scraps of mere eyebrow covers is but a typical millinery gesture. See the smallest tricornes ever unpacked for proof. See the antelope whimsies, a mere ruffled circle of the softest antelope fastened to a snood of black veiling and a band of ribbon. See the coquettish feathered trifles, in black or color, that have to be tied on to keep them in position, and that position a sky high spot on almost one wave or curl.

Berets are dashing things this August, profile flatterers that are as effective as compliments from your best beau. They slant dizzily across the very side of the head, leaving more than half of your coiffure exposed to wind, weather or comment.

Mere bows of material unblushingly serve as a hat. The bows are of ribbon, fabric, or combines of both. A bunch of feathers also does the same utterly indescribable trick. And the coquettish concoctions of both feathers and velvet ribbon bows keep you aware that revolutionary hat ideas are capable of making a siren out of the shy wall flower.

Crazed Throng Hears Ravinia Swing Concert

BY EDWARD BARRY.

Benny Goodman brought his swing band to Ravinia park last night.

The evening turned out to be a ten ring circus, with the audience responsible for most of the goings-on. Sixty-two hundred persons, crazed by the heat and the music, filled the park with wonderful primitive yells. Stomping feet, rhythmically clapping hands, swaying bodies, and little squeals of ecstasy punctuated tune after tune through the evening.

The cries would float through the night from the far lawns beyond the pavilion at a big climax. When rhythmic frenzy could go no further and the band would stop, a great jungle shout would threaten the eardrums of the unwary.

Nervous applause began half an hour before the musicians appeared. By 8:30 an almost unbearable excitement gripped the audience. It discharged itself hysterically at the entrance of the first men. It was renewed and gleefully discharged again and again as the rhythm maddened crowds shouted their approval of this brave, wild, almost voodooish music.

Benny Goodman, the quiet, bespectacled Chicagoan who at 29 ranks semi-officially as the king of swing, had his band of thirteen men [trumpets, trombones, saxophones, guitar, piano, and a percussion battery], and an anonymous songstress, an extra pianist, drummer, and vibraphone player.

With these forces he presented a program of recent and not so recent popular tunes, all of them in bewilderingly clever and effective arrangements. Singly or in groups the instruments play with a rhythm or a melody until the suspense as to what is to happen next lets loose a surge of feeling from the audience.

Often the whole band blares unashamedly along in a broad, almost flowing melody. Soon the flow increases subtly in intensity; the brass instruments smear great blobs of brilliant gold all over the color scheme, and the whole band bursts into deafening roars and screams of pure toneless sound. Open mouthed, wordless yells from the throng build these climaxes into peaks which Ravinia park has never known before.

Not all of the audience succumbed to the Goodman madness. In the pavilion were dignified, elderly people, who watched all of this funny business tolerantly. Some of them left at the intermission and their places were taken by frenzied youth, who gave the second half a more engagingly insane character even than the first.

A walk through the grounds during the second half of the program revealed a great many uninterested faces. However, some youngsters, to whom the evening was dedicated, were reported to be big-appling in remote spots.

Anyway, it should have done much to make up financially for the many poor audiences which the summer's bad weather has given Ravinia. Tonight the final week of the festival opens officially.

Good Morning!

Josephine Baker, the Negro dancing celebrity from St. Louis, who married a Frenchman, is the star of this picture.

Before leaving for Europe some time ago, she attained considerable fame over here in "Shuffle Along." Since then she has become independently wealthy and, for the last year has been dancing and singing in the Paris Folies Bergeres.

Her performance in "Princess Tam Tam"—from the French studios—is far superior to the picture in which she performs. It's a garbled affair, indifferently directed and photographed. . . . A desperate and not very successful effort was made to emulate the Busby Berkeley ensembles, and I thought the acting of supporting principals in no way noteworthy. . . .

The narrative tells of a Parisian novelist, Max Mirecort, separated from his wife for a while, who, in Africa becomes interested in the beggar girl, Aouina. . . . Her varied reactions to one thing and another intrigue the artist. . . . He and his secretary tote her to Paris for further observation, for Mirecort would write a novel around Aouina.

He starts his book—and much of the action shown is the story he concocts—not events as they actually happen. Confusing, quite.

The finale is rather amusing.

An outstanding episode is that in which the star presents one of her dances. It's plenty hot.

This film is far below the standard of the usual World Playhouse offering.

See you soon.

Patou Show Launches New Color Cornaline; It's a Pinkish Rust

PARIS, Aug. 3.—(AP)—Pinkish rust, a new color named cornaline and sponsored by Patou, was shown today in winter style displays.

Also featured were greens in bottle and olive shades. Braid frogs gave a military touch to black suits and fur coats.

Much fur was employed on velveteen, duvetine, and broadcloth coats and suits. There were many front draped skirts with bloused backs. There were some bishop sleeves and boxpleat skirts. Enameled flower clips were favored as jewelry.

Many day skirts were circular flared. Some very tight evening skirts were shown, but full skirts also shared attention.

Materials for evening clothes included velvet lames, chiffon lace, and satin jersey. Evening colors were petunia, fuchsia, cornaline, pale blue, white, and black.

Lelong showed striking full skirted evening dresses in emerald lace, pink tulle, and white moire. Some narrow velvet dresses with draped out hips were displayed. Much velvet was used for day wear in wine reds and duck greens. Novel designs in gold costume jewelry were offered for day and evening use.

INSTALMENT XI.

PLANNING ESCAPE.

Claire moved from the wall and felt that life had streamed from her leaving her bones like paper and her blood turned to water. She caught the table to keep herself from falling.

Brandy. There was a big silver flask in Arnold's trunk. She staggered to it clinging to the furniture on the way. Opened the trunk—found it in the top drawer—drank it straight from the flask.

It was mellow old brandy that slipped over her throat like velvet, but suddenly she felt the heat of it in her stomach and her veins run with fire. Ah, that was better.

She did not hear the light tap on the outside door. Miss Fitch waited a moment, then entered, closed the door, turned the key in the lock and put it in her pocket.

Claire heard the door shut and came into the drawing room. She saw at once that the pale shrinking stewardess was terrified of her. The fool woman was looking at her as if she had the plague or was a wild beast or something. "What are you doing here?" she cried furiously.

Miss Fitch drew herself up with a tremendous effort to assume authority. She was a splendid stewardess, willing and efficient, full of resource in trouble and a comfort in sickness, but she had never been able to hold her own with the bullying type of passenger. She could not get over the idea that this beautiful young woman was a murderess—abnormal—monstrous—unclean.

Claire advanced on her, eyes blazing. "You get out—or I'll throw you out."

Miss Fitch retreated wildly to the door. "I'd be glad if you did," she said desperately. "I don't want to stay. I'd much rather he sent somebody else in to you."

That made Claire pause. Of course if this fool woman went they'd send her another one. Maybe two. They'd certainly choose one the next time she couldn't handle. Claire, suddenly gentle as if the fight had gone out of her, said—"After all, you're only doing your duty. Sit down somewhere. It isn't your fault."

She went into the bedroom and shut the door on the intruder. Miss Fitch was very tired. She had been on her feet for eighteen hours. Sitting on the divan, her head nodded. Finally it sank to the pillow. Very soon she was asleep.

Claire opened the bedroom door. Seeing the stewardess sound asleep she waited a little, tiptoed forward, took the key from the pocket of the woman's apron, retreated and quietly shut the door behind her. Her heart banged on her ribs with painful excitement. If only the woman would sleep on, there was a possibility of escape.

At this moment when everything seemed to be closing inexorably around her, life had never seemed more sweet.

She went back to Arnold's open trunk and fingered the papers lying in the upper drawer. There was a wallet under them. She took it out—there was a lot of money in it—in clean new hundred dollar bills. She took the money out of the wallet and thrust it into the bosom of her dress. This would take care of her for some time if only she could get away.

Get away! Escape! Could such a thing be done. The impact on her mind of the enormity of the idea and the hazard of it shook her nerves and took toll of her weakness. Swept by a wave of dizziness she felt herself falling. Hunger of course, that was it. She hadn't eaten all day.

There was still a little brandy left in the flask. She must have more. She raised the flask to her lips and drank again.

Why did they have that woman in there when they knew she couldn't get off the ship? She laughed drunkenly. She knew why. They thought she would step off her veranda deck into the dark. The fools, as if she would let go of the tiniest hope life offered! Why she despised the very idea of suicide.

Suicide! That was the solution. They expected it of her. If it looked as if she'd done it, they wouldn't search the ship. She could hide—and somehow, sometime she could find a way to get away. In the dark the next night when all the passengers had gone. She could swim. She would get into the water somehow and swim to another dock.

Now how to make it look as if she had gone in? Claire stood on a chair and looked out of one of the ports. The water was a long way down. If she were really going to do it, she would try to do it without making a splash in case the woman woke and she was rescued and dragged back on to the ship.

If one knotted the sheets from the beds and tied them to the veranda rails there wouldn't be so far then to fall. One could quietly drop in.

She pulled the sheets off the beds, four of them—then added the two gray silk covers. That was ready. Now what about herself? Dark clothes so that she would not be easily seen. She stripped off the white dress she had been wearing all day with shaking impatient fingers. Put on her black suit with a dark wine colored blouse, tucked her bright hair under a soft black beret.

A flat oilskin soap case lay on the glass shelf in the bathroom. She took it up with delight. This would preserve her money.

Her brain was not so clear now. She stood before the mirror looking at herself, vaguely aware that there was something she had forgotten. The bareness at the collar of her blouse reminded her. She always wore a jeweled clip there. Of course, she had almost forgotten to take her jewels.

She opened the large leather box, fastened the diamond bracelets on her arms, pushed them up under her sleeves one by one. Fastened her pearls round her neck, then the diamond necklace, slipped them down under the neckline of her blouse, clipped on the star sapphire and diamond clip. She saw now that the emerald in her ring was missing.

There were rings, too, and earrings. She pushed them into a glove and slipped them down with the little oilskin packet of money into her bosom. She would be all right now for some time to come. If her luck held, and she was able to get clean away.

Now was the first terrible moment. To get through the drawing room, tie the sheets to the veranda rail, and get out past the sleeping stewardess without waking her.

Claire went to the bedroom door, put her hand on the handle. The sensation of suspense that swept her held her there helpless for a moment. She saw the flask lying on the bed where she had thrown it. She went to it, opened the cap and drained the last of the brandy.

She was moving very unsteadily when she went into the drawing room. Miss Fitch was lying on her back with her mouth open emitting deep intermittent snores. Claire tied the knot on the rail and slipped the improvised rope down so that it dangled almost to the surface of the sea. Another minute and she was safely in the passage outside the suite.

The deep silence of the small hours lay in the long empty lighted alleyway. It was half past three. Claire went down the passage towards the after end, cut through the bathroom corridor amidships and went up on deck by the deck stewards' narrow iron stairs.

Bishop Stewart Recovered; Will Return Home Today

Bishop George Craig Stewart of the Episcopal diocese of Chicago will return today to his home in Evanston from the War Memorial hospital at Sault Ste. Marie, Mich. He has been in the hospital since June 6, when he was stricken with a heart attack during a service at the Algoma [Canada] diocesan conference, where he was to have preached. "Bishop Stewart has made a splendid recovery," said Angus Hibbard, 2440 Lincoln Park West, a close friend. "But physicians advise that he take it easy for some weeks."

Another family counting on favors from the weather man is that of Mr. and Mrs. William Sutherland, whose daughter, Elizabeth, is to be married Saturday, Aug. 13, to George Manuel Fenollosa. The wedding is being planned to take place in the garden of the Sutherland home overlooking the lake in Glencoe.

Coat Dress Is Comfortable

WOMAN'S AND MISS' COAT FROCK.

All summer long one needs a dress of this type, that may be slipped on at any time without trouble. It buttons down the front, as does a coat, and serves the same purpose as that of a house coat, except that it is cooler by virtue of being shorter. If you do a lot of picnicking, sojourning at your summer home, or if you are simply a housewife, you have need for a frock of this type. It makes up beautifully in gayly patterned cottons and linens. Its shirtwaist collar is trim, its fitted lines are flattering, and the puffed sleeves girlish. Needless to say, the buttons not only are utilitarian, they are decorative, too.

If you like, use this pattern for a smock. The sketch at the upper right suggests a scheme. The neckline might be opened wide, the sleeves made long and blousy, caught into wrist bands. Contrasting pockets to match the collar would benefit from a touch of bright embroidery. We suggest pattern No. E-700, which is available for 10 cents extra.

Style No. 2113 is designed for sizes 14, 16, 18, and 20 years, and 32, 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46, and 48 inches bust measurement. Size 36 requires 4⅝ yards of 39 inch material.

CLOTILDE PATTERNS ARE 10 CENTS EACH

Museum Last Roundhouse to 4 Locomotives

Four weary old locomotives heard the click-click of the rails for the last time yesterday as they trailed behind a Diesel switch engine, throttled down to a decorous eight miles an hour. They were on their way to the Rosenwald Museum of Science and Industry, their final resting place.

The four are the York, which won a $4,000 prize when it was built in 1831 for the Baltimore and Ohio railroad; the Mississippi, which ran between Natchez and Hamburg, Miss., as early as 1834; the Pioneer, whose run to the Des Plaines river on Oct. 24, 1848, was the first out of Chicago, and the 1401, which hauled main line and suburban trains for the Illinois Central road from 1880 until 1920.

The four have been donated to the museum by the railroads. They were hauled from Burnside, where they have been since they were exhibited at A Century of Progress Exposition, to the 51st street spur track of the Illinois Central.

The York weighs about 3½ tons and could pull 15 tons at 15 miles an hour [on a level track] in its prime. It was built only two years after the Stourbridge Lion made the first run in the western hemisphere at Honesdale, Pa. The Tom Thumb, a locomotive similar to the York, was defeated in a match race with a horse in 1830.

The Mississippi, built for the Mississippi railroad, was shipped south by way of the Ohio and Mississippi rivers, and was in use from 1834 until 1873 by various southern roads. During the civil war it moved confederate troops and supplies, and was captured by the Union forces at Vicksburg. It was wrecked in 1873 and remained in a mud bank until 1880, when it was salvaged and reconditioned. The Illinois Central road obtained it in 1891, and in 1893 it came to the Columbian Exposition under its own power.

The Pioneer was brought to Chicago from the east by boat in 1848, the property of the Chicago and Galena Union road, later absorbed by the Chicago and North Western. By 1850 it was running as far west as Elgin on a thin strip of iron laid over wooden rails. The first railroad station in Chicago was built in 1848 on what now is the site of the Merchandise Mart.

The only other railroad in Illinois in 1850 was the line from Springfield to Naples operated by the Sangamon and Morgan, a revival of the Northern Cross.

The 1401 was built for the Illinois Central and is estimated to have traveled more than one and a half million miles in the 40 years it was in service. It is 40 feet long and weighs about 100,000 pounds, as compared with a modern 2400, which is nearly 90 feet in length and weighs 570,000 pounds.

Today each of the locomotives will be loaded on a single truck and taken to the museum, where they will be displayed in the newly completed west wing. There will be few witnesses to this final humiliation, however. They are not to be moved until after dark.

Adult Education Meeting Will Open Next Sunday

More than 400 middle west leaders of adult education programs will gather Sunday at College camp, Lake Geneva, Wis., for a week's conference. The conference leader will be Prof. Eduard C. Lindeman of the University of California, director of the WPA Community Organization for Leisure.

THROUGH THE LOOKING GLASS

The only thing nicer than having a choice of fresh corsages every day is having a choice of delicate, true floral colognes. It's a joy to set out on a hot morning charmingly, coolly perfumed.

Almost as good as a standing order at your florists is ownership of a "floral bouquet" in the form of a trio of colognes. These come in a spick and span sort of package, all ivory, in the shape of a drum with gold cording. It's stunning in itself. The colognes it contains are interchangeable—you can have a wide choice of floral fragrances, all of them true as truth, and all of them lovely.

In our box, which we've been enjoying immensely this summer, there is one cologne in particular that seems to us to strike a new and quite beautiful note. It's mimosa, about which there is nothing new, but it's mimosa with a difference. This has what we can only describe as a "green" undertone; it's gardenish and woodsy and wonderful for hot weather. Not too sweet, either.

There is also a sweet pea that completely escapes the cloying note that spoils so many versions of this scent. It, too, has the cool, fresh note that makes it ideal for summer use. The third in our box is orchid, a subtle bouquet that has charms all its own.

These, used lavishly, are perfect fragrances for muggy weather, with plenty of the champagne sparkle of good cologne and beautiful perfume in addition.

ELEANOR NANGLE.

According to CULBERTSON

[Copyright: 1938: By Ely Culbertson.]

Some of the battles waged between an expert declarer and equally expert defenders are worth the attention of war correspondents. In the hand shown below the defense was particularly splendid. Watching it, I was struck by the thought that East and West had borrowed Verdun's immortal slogan, "They shall not pass!"

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 no trump	Pass	3 no trump	Pass
Pass	Pass

Since North had two honor tricks divided among three suits and a total of five honor cards, his double raise was correct.

West made his proper opening lead, the heart jack. Declarer won with the king. [It would have done no good to concede the first trick. West would lead another low heart, thus leaving a heart in East's hand for communication purposes.]

Declarer could count only eight top tricks. The ninth might be established in either diamonds or spades, but one thing was vital: to keep East out of the lead and thus prevent a heart return through the remaining Q 7. The obvious solution was to attempt to pass a diamond [declarer had eight diamonds and only seven spades] into West's hand. As the best means to that end declarer led a low club to the queen and returned the three of diamonds, intending to put in the nine spot if East played low. But East was not in accommodating humor. One thing he knew: if declarer had the A J of diamonds the queen wasn't worth a hoot. But East had been up against thousands of situations in which declarer's proper plan was to pass a trick into the nondangerous hand, and this looked like just such a case. West's opening lead, in connection with declarer's winning with the king, might very well be from a holding of A J 10, and that would require a lead-through by East.

With nothing to lose and possibly something to gain, East shrewdly jumped up with his diamond queen on the lead from dummy. Declarer was forced to win [or face a heart return], and at this point West rose nobly to his partner's example. He played the diamond jack on declarer's ace! If he hadn't, another diamond lead would have settled the defenders' hash. West would have been politely presented with the jack on the next lead, and East would have been unable to save him.

The alert unblock put declarer back where he had started. He sensed that a third diamond lead would be fatal, giving East the lead, and hence attempted the same maneuver in the spade suit that he had tried in diamonds. But the defenders had tasted blood and were not to be denied. Exactly the same sequence of plays took place: on a low spade lead from dummy East put in the queen, forcing declarer to win, and West gayly cooperated by getting rid of his unwanted jack.

The declarer had squirmed in vain. He simply couldn't throw the lead where he wanted it and the final result, a one trick defeat of the contract, was a glorious victory for the defenders.

The much neglected turnip is a good vegetable buy these days. Unfair discrimination against it is a result of unsatisfactory cookery methods, not a reflection upon the vegetable itself. Overcooked, the turnip, like its distant relative, cabbage, becomes strong flavored and, worse than that, loses character in texture. Properly cooked, it's delicate and delicious.

Cook turnips uncovered, in boiling, salted water, only until tender. There should be a suggestion of crispness about the finished vegetable. Season liberally with salt, more if needed, pepper and butter. There you have cooked turnips in their simplest form. They are excellent scalloped just as you would scallop potatoes, too.

Turnip cups are attractive enough for Sunday company service.

TURNIP CUPS.

Select medium sized turnips, wash, pare, and cook in boiling salted water until just tender. Drain, cut a slice from the root end of each turnip, and scoop out the center. Fill with freshly cooked buttered peas, with seasoned whole kernel corn, with diced buttered carrots, or with Harvard beets. Brush with butter and keep hot in the oven until time to serve the food. Turnip cups may be stuffed with creamed, leftover meat and baked until hot, too. These attractive vegetable cases also may be chilled, marinated in French dressing, and used as a basis for a mixed vegetable salad.

Turnips with Cheese Sauce.
[Serves Three]

3 medium turnips
2 tablespoons butter
2 tablespoons flour
1½ cups milk
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
½ cup grated cheese

Peel turnips and slice them into boiling, salted water. Cook until just tender, about 15 minutes. Make a white sauce of butter, flour, milk and seasonings. Place turnips in a buttered casserole and pour the sauce over them. Top with grated cheese and bake until thoroughly hot in a moderate oven, 350 degrees.

PARSLEY TURNIP BALLS.

Pare turnips and cut them into balls with a ball cutter. Cook in boiling, salted water until tender, drain, and add butter, a little pepper and minced parsley.

GLAZED TURNIPS.

Cook diced turnips in boiling, salted water until barely tender. Drain and put in a skillet with 3 tablespoons butter and 3 tablespoons corn sirup. Cook slowly until the turnips take on a golden glaze, turning frequently with a spatula. Sprinkle with chopped parsley to serve.

Raw turnips may be grated or sliced very thinly to go into combination fresh vegetable salads. They give a salad crispness and piquency of flavor, two great recommendations for their use. It is well to crisp thinly sliced turnip in ice water for 15 minutes or so before combining the salad.

Golden Voice Is Important to Loveliness

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

[Copyright: 1938: By The Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Syndicate, Inc.]

Off on your vacation? Looking forward to the adventure of meeting new people? Naturally you want them to like you. Be sure, when you open your mouth, that you make friends. You won't if you jar on the ears. A lovely, well modulated voice is one of woman's greatest charms.

Cup your hands behind your ears and push them forward. Then talk. This will tell you how your voice sounds to others. Making yourself heard above transportation and street noises may have given you the habit of shouting. Of course, you can't change your voice overnight, but you can lower its pitch. You can speak gently. Don't break the country stillness with strident tones.

Nasal voices are harsh and grating. They suggest a rough and discordant personality, some one who probably is tactless. Open your throat wide in speaking. Think of yourself as throwing the sounds from a lower level against the back of your lower teeth.

Shrillness indicates a nervous, excitable woman. If your voice has this unusual quality, you undoubtedly are breathing with short, quick breaths and using only the upper part of your chest. Deep breaths will make you calmer and your voice deeper and richer.

A monotonous voice with no variety of range is tiresome. Your listeners soon will get bored. This fault isn't easily or quickly cured. But try going up and down the scales to habituate yourself to using different notes.

Left Handed Child Skilled in Art, Games

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

[Copyright: 1938: By The Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Syndicate, Inc.]

"My Dear Mrs. Bevans: I was reading your article in the paper about left-handed boys and was pleased at what you wrote. I have a boy who is 14 and has been using his left hand ever since he was a baby. And I would never prevent him from using it. He eats, writes, and plays ball—everything he does is left-handed.

"What I would like you to know is that he is always picked for all sports and I would like you also to know that he is good at drawing pictures. I think he has plenty of talent in sketching. He could draw almost anything with his left hand. I wish you could see some of his drawings to convince yourself.

"I was glad when I read your article and as a dad I am proud of my left-handed boy."

I quote this letter to emphasize what I have said so often in this column—that the child who is left-handed is as normal as if he were right-handed; that he can be as deft, as clever in the use of his hands and his whole body as any other child; that he can be as capable mentally and in sports and manual activities as the child who is right-handed.

However, the left-handed child does not come into a full, poised mental and physical development unless he is allowed to use his hands as his spontaneous impulse directs. If he is constantly urged, forced, or coaxed to employ his right hand against his inclination trouble almost invariably follows — in muscular awkwardness, in mental proficiency, and in personality.

Part of this trouble is actually physiological, but part of it is also the logical result of making a child feel he is handicapped by constantly correcting him and making him conscious of being different from other children.

"The Left-Handed Child in a Right-Handed World" is a leaflet of interest to parents. It will be sent on receipt of a large stamped, self-addressed envelop. Address Mrs. Gladys Bevans, The Chicago Tribune, Chicago, Ill.

MUSIC FESTIVAL PRELIMINARIES TO START TODAY

Elimination Contest at Edgewater Beach Tonight

BY PHILIP MAXWELL.

Beginning today and continuing until the night of the Chicagoland Music festival in Soldiers' field, activities connected with the festival will abound in this city and throughout Chicagoland. Contests and rehearsals will find thousands of men, women, boys and girls practicing their parts for the world's greatest outdoor musical spectacle. The festival will be held Saturday, Aug. 20.

Mrs. Juen D. Ostman. [Marshall Studio Photo.]

Tonight opens a long series of vocal competitions. At 7 o'clock in the grand ballroom of the Edgewater Beach hotel, 184 singers from the north part of Cook county will begin the serious business of finding those whom three judges believe to have the best voices.

The tenors, contraltos, and baritones will be heard tonight, the sopranos [and there are 83 of them alone], mezzo-sopranos, and basses will sing tomorrow night.

Among the sopranos to be heard tomorrow night at the Edgewater Beach hotel is Mrs. Juen D. Ostman.

A resolution commending THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE for its interest in music and its work in furthering public music appreciation through the Chicagoland Music festival was adopted yesterday by the National Association of Music Merchants.

The deadline for entry of all festival contestants will be Monday evening at 6 p. m. Signed entry blanks for both groups and individuals must be in the office of the festival headquarters, room 1418, in Tribune Tower, at that time.

WIDEN CONGRESS STREET TO 66 FT., MAYOR SUGGESTS

A plan for widening Congress street to 66 feet from Central avenue to Canal street with one way streets leading into the loop was suggested yesterday by Mayor Kelly. He made the suggestion to a group of representatives of west side civic organizations.

The mayor said that the city does not have sufficient money to build a superhighway 209 feet wide from Ashland avenue to Wells street which the organizations proposed. This would cost approximately $8,400,000, including a new bridge over the Chicago river.

Engineers estimate that the cost of the project suggested by Mayor Kelly would be $3,623,870. Of this amount, $845,825 would be for condemnation awards on property where Congress street does not go through. The balance would be used for construction of a 44 foot roadway.

VINCENZO FIGHTS VILLAGE BOARD FOR HALF A FENCE

Half a fence is better than no fence at all. Perhaps it will never be completed, but Vincenzo Lorenzo is determined that what is there shall stand. He filed suit yesterday asking the Circuit court to protect him from arrest for his failure to tear it down.

Lorenzo started to put up the wooden fence around his home at 1216 34th avenue in Melrose Park on July 1. He had a village permit. Neighbors said it was unsightly. They put their objections in a petition to the village board, and the board told Police Chief Robert Wigglesworth to halt the construction.

Lorenzo obeyed this order, but he refused to tear down what fence was already there. When he was threatened with arrest he hired Attorney Mandel Mandelson to ask the court to let him keep it.

VOTE TO DIVERT 2½ MILLION GAS TAX FOR RELIEF

The city council yesterday appropriated $2,500,000 from the motor fuel tax fund for relief. Diversion of the money for this purpose was authorized by the special session of the legislature.

Approximately $1,750,000 will be used for relief during the rest of 1938, according to Leo M. Lyons, Chicago relief administrator. The balance will be distributed during January, 1939.

Only $1,000,000 remains in the fund for street repair and maintenance this year. The state annually gives the city $6,000,000 in gas tax money, of which $2,500,000 already has been appropriated for the board of education.

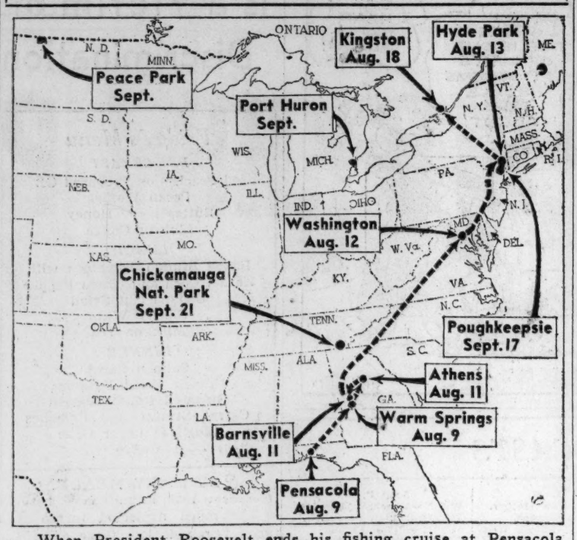
Vacationing President Plans Travels



When President Roosevelt ends his fishing cruise at Pensacola, Fla., on Aug. 9, he will begin a series of travels that will carry him through a large part of the United States and into Canada. After a trip to Washington and on to Hyde Park, he will visit Canada. He is planning a trip to Michigan and North Dakota for September. He will also make another southern trip next month.

MORE TRAVELING NEXT 2 MONTHS FOR ROOSEVELT

Summer Program to Keep Him on Go.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 8.—President Roosevelt, now on a fishing cruise in the Pacific, plans to do quite a bit more traveling this month and next.

White House aids said today Mr. Roosevelt had made out a tentative schedule that will take him into the middle west and into the south. A side trip will be made to Canada.

Returning from his long cruise aboard the U. S. S. Houston, the President will land at Pensacola, Fla., Aug. 9.

That afternoon he will go to Warm Springs, Ga., for a brief stay before visiting Athens, Ga., on the morning of Aug. 11 to receive an honorary degree from the University of Georgia. Roosevelt then plans to slip over to nearby Barnsville, Ga., that afternoon to speak at a dedication of a rural electrification project.

May Speak Against George.

It is at Barnsville that followers of politics expect the President to say something in behalf of the candidacy of Lawrence Camp, United States attorney, who is opposing Senator George of Georgia for renomination. George has been marked down for "purging" by some New Dealers.

Leaving Georgia the nation's number one traveler will return to the capital for a one day stay before going to his Hyde Park, N. Y., home.

On Aug. 18 he will receive a degree from Queens university, at Kingston, Ontario. The same day he will dedicate the Thousand Islands bridge across the St. Lawrence and then return to Hyde Park for a stay of some two weeks.

The September engagements are still rather tentative, White House attaches said, but they include visits to Peace Park, N. D., and to Port Huron, Mich., to dedicate another international bridge connecting with Sarnia, Ont. Peace park is on the Canadian boundary about 65 miles northeast of Minot, N. D.

Dates Not Yet Definite.

No definite dates have been set for these trips. If he makes them he will have an opportunity, if he is so inclined, to say a few kind words for Gov. Frank Murphy of Michigan and Senator F. Ryan Duffy [D., Wis.], strong Roosevelt supporters who seek to be returned to office.

The southern trip scheduled for September is expected to take Mr. Roosevelt to the Chickamauga National park in Tennessee for a speech probably on the 21st.

Before that speaking date, however, Mr. Roosevelt has one to fill at Poughkeepsie, N. Y., on the 17th, where a sesqui-centennial celebration is to be held.

When Mr. Roosevelt is not on the road filling these engagements, White House people said, he will spend his time at Hyde Park.

ROOSEVELT ENDS FISHING; STARTS FOR CANAL ZONE

ABOARD THE U. S. S. HOUSTON, Aug. 3.—(AP)—President Roosevelt ended his deep sea fishing in the Pacific today and the cruiser Houston headed toward Balboa, Canal Zone, from Cocos Island, 540 miles west of Panama. He is scheduled to arrive in Balboa tomorrow afternoon.

Soon after his arrival the President will give a reception in honor of officials of Panama, United States diplomats, and army and navy commandants at the Canal Zone.

Mr. Roosevelt will motor from Balboa Friday morning to Pedro Miguel lock.

WHIZZER WHITE TO PLAY ON COLLEGE ALL-STAR TEAM

COLORADO ACE AIMS TO MATCH BAUGH'S PASSES

Ducky Pond Leads Coaches' Poll.

BY ARCH WARD.

The All-Star football game between the Chicago All-Americans and the Washington Redskins at Soldiers' field the night of Aug. 31 may develop into one of the greatest forward passing duels in gridiron history. This became more than a possibility yesterday when Byron [Whizzer] White, famous half back from Colorado university, accepted an invitation to join the college squad.

Byron White.

White, who established himself as one of the leading ball carriers and probably the best forward passer in collegiate ranks last season, will be pitted against Sammy Baugh of the Redskins, whose brilliant aerial work in last year's All-Star game enabled the college boys to whip the Green Bay Packers, 6 to 0.

Joins Pirates Wednesday.

White did not win a starting position in the player poll conducted by THE TRIBUNE and 150 associated newspapers and radio stations. This was attributed mainly to the fact that he comes from a section of the country that lacks the numerical strength of the communities that elected the opening battle front. Coaches are permitted, however, to make substitutions any time after the kickoff and it is a certainty they will make good use of White.

Baugh, the individual hero of the 1937 All-Star game, was not elected to a starting position. He replaced Bobby LaRue of Pittsburgh shortly after the game opened and was in the lineup most of the time thereafter.

White, who will become a Rhodes scholar at Oxford in February, will join the Pittsburgh Pirates, who have guaranteed him a salary of $15,000 for the season, next Wednesday. He will report to the All-Star camp at Northwestern university a few days later. Permission for White to take part in the All-Star game was given by Art Rooney, owner of the Pittsburgh club.

Pirates' Owner Coöperates.

"I have a heavy investment in White," Rooney said yesterday, "and naturally don't care to run unnecessary risks of injury. However, the Chicago All-Star game has contributed more to football than any other event of our time and I want to do my part in maintaining its popularity. White will be in there and I expect to see him emerge as the star among stars. Furthermore, he'll be back in the 1939 All-Star game playing with the new champions of the National Professional league."

The day after the conclusion of the player poll THE TRIBUNE invited sixty-eight athletes to join the All-Star squad. Acceptances have been received from sixty-six. Joe Ruetz of Notre Dame, a guard, is endeavoring to make arrangements to get away from other assignments. The only player elected by the fans who definitly will not be here is Alex Wojciechowicz, Fordham center. An heir is expected in the Wojciechowicz household within the next two or three weeks and Alex felt he could not concentrate on football while practicing so far from home. He intends to play with a group of eastern boys who will meet the New York Giants after Labor day.

Here Is Personnel.

Exclusive of Ruetz, who hopes to be able to join the squad, the All-Star group will report at Northwestern Aug. 12 as follows:

Ends — Sweeney, Notre Dame; Schwartz, California; Kovatch, North-

RIP COLLINS, FRANK DEMAREE SENT TO BENCH

Marty and Asbell to Play in Outfield.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, N. Y., Aug. 3.—Gabby Hartnett tonight broke loose in verbal indignation for the first time since he became manager of the Cubs two weeks ago. The outburst followed the Cubs' 8 to 3 defeat at the hands of the Giants. With the explosion came the announcement that he has given up, temporarily at least, on Outfielder Frank Demaree and First Baseman Rip Collins as performers of the caliber he wants on the Cubs. Both ended innings today with puny efforts when the bases were loaded, but these incidents, he said, only confirmed suppressed appraisals he previously had made of the two players.

"I never have seen two players fold up so completely," said Gabby in announcing the benching of Demaree and Collins. "I know that a player can't hit every time he goes to bat with important runs on base. But he at least can give a good try. I endeavored to build up Demaree by restoring him to the cleanup spot. But it didn't do any good. I'm going to go into the cleanup spot myself and whether I deliver or not I'll at least be up there having a healthy cut."

Here's New Lineup.

Hartnett's new lineup is different from any the Cubs have presented in this shifting season. He said he would use it tomorrow and in the Boston series. Here it is:

Jurges	Short stop
Cavarretta	First base
Hack	Third base
Hartnett	Catcher
Reynolds	Left field
Herman	Second base
Marty	Center field
Asbell	Right field

Hartnett said he would start Vance Page in the Boston series Saturday and use Bryant and Lee in Sunday's double-header. Dizzy Dean will be allowed to sit around for a while longer, he said.

The Cubs' pennant bee was caught in a home run tornado today and again the poor little feller doesn't know whether he is coming or going. If the Giants had relied on the face value of their homers alone they would have triumphed. There were four homers, three off Bill Lee, by Mel Ott, Dick Bartell, and Gus Mancuso, and one, by Bob Seeds, off Jack Russell.

The setback was depressing in so far as pennant ratings were concerned. The Cubs' chances to go into second place in the final here tomorrow vanished, since they were thrown 2½ games back of the New Yorkers. Moreover, they faded eight games back of the Pirates, a net loss of 3½ games in the Pittsburgh-Chicago comparisons in a week. And to make things more complex, the Cubs are now in a tie with the Cincinnati Reds.

Bill Changes Direction.

Bill Lee was the starting and losing pitcher. Bill has been looking for his fourteenth victory in three of the games the Cubs have played on this trip.

The Cubs made 11 hits to the Giants 12, but pulled several fadeouts, including a final one in the ninth when they had the bases full with one down and couldn't count. They also failed to count after loading the bases in the sixth, when they still were in the ball game.

Redskins Pass, but They Also Run That Ball!

BY GEORGE HALAS.

[Head Coach Chicago Bears.]

Sammy Baugh's forward passing has been so highly publicized that it may be hard to believe that the Washington Redskins ever bother to run the ball. The New York Giants will be glad to testify, however, that the Redskin backs also carry the mail. In the game with the Giants for the eastern championship Washington gained 262 yards on running plays alone, enough to win an ordinary game.

The ground attack has centered around Cliff Battles. If he is in the lineup against the All-Americans the night of Aug. 31 the fans will have the opportunity to see the leaders of the National Football league in both running and passing.

Figures Tell Story.

Battles led the league in ground gained during the regular 1937 season with a total of 874 yards. Baugh broke the league record with 81 passes completed out of 171 attempts for gains totaling 1,127 yards. The previous record was established in 1936 by Arnold Herber of the Green Bay Packers with 77 completed passes out of 173 attempts.

Big Turk Edwards, Washington tackle, who weighs 255 pounds, does a lot of ground breaking for the Redskin ball carriers. He is a notoriously slow starter, however, and seldom reaches his peak until the regular season is well along. The All-Stars will realize, however, that he is in the lineup. When he is top shape he is very rude, paying scarcely any attention to blockers who attempt to keep him away from the opposing ball carrier. If an end gets too ambitious Turk may pick him up and throw him at the runner.

Stars Enter Pro Football.

Many of the present National league stars are graduates of the All-Star game, among them Tuffy Leemans, now with the Giants; Tinsley and Blazine of the Chicago Cardinals; Millner, Smith and Baugh of the Redskins; Stydahar, Fortman and Francis of the Bears, and others.

Many of the All-Stars will be only one night away from professional football on Aug. 31, but they will remain on the collegiate side, in action and spirit, until after the final gun. Both teams will really level at one another and don't be surprised if bits of fur waft up on the lake breeze.

[This is the fourth of a series by George Halas. Another will appear tomorrow.]

Air line employes have their own favorites in the coaches' poll. United Airlines' Stewardess Florence Pond, Capt. Cecil Odell, and Mechanic William Meisner cast their ballots at the end of a flight at Municipal airport.

SOX EXERCISE AS ATHLETICS TAKE A PAIR, 14-2, 13-5

Whitehead and Rigney Losing "Pitchers."

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

The White Sox encountered acute suffering yesterday from an unexpected source. Having lost six in a row to such elite performers as the Red Sox and Champion Yankees, the Chicagoans anticipated smooth traveling in a double-header with the lowly Athletics, who had succumbed without complaint the previous day. The expectations of the Chicagoans weren't realized. Mr. Connie Mack's foundlings rose up with the might of titleholders instead of seventh placers and administered two severe beatings to their hosts. The scores were 14 to 2 and 13 to 5.

The first episode was decided hurriedly because the Mackmen shoved John [Girth] Whitehead into the torture chamber and didn't permit him to escape for three innings. By the time he got away there had been nine hits and seven runs.

Rookie Boyles Is Only Fair.

What happened in the remainder of the game can be charged to the unveiling of Harry Boyles, the rookie from Longview, Tex. He did well for a stretch, but slipped to the extent of three runs in the seventh and in the ninth was the victim of Bob Johnson's twentieth homer, which occurred with the bases filled.

The second battle was similar in decisiveness, but there was a change in personnel. Starting where Whitehead had made an earlier appearance without success was John Rigney. It took the Macks four innings, instead of three to pile up seven runs against the young fellow, but none of these was due to homers. Then Frank Gabler was dragged in and tagged for six runs in the seventh.

FIRST GAME

The horrors heaped on Whitehead in the first game began early. His first pitch was converted into a triple into right center by Finney. Moses singled to center and Finney registered. After a couple of fellows had flied out, Johnson whacked his nineteenth homer into the left field seats, Moses preceding him across the plate. This completed Whitehead's anguish for the opening inning.

After the second inning had opened with an out, Whitehead walked Parker, who failed in an effort to reach third on Thomas' single. A moment later Finney sent his sixth homer into the right field seats for two runs.

Athletics Get Two More.

The Macks refrained from homers in the third, but nevertheless scored another pair of runs. Hayes led off with a two bagger and Johnson followed with a hit of similar length, Hayes scoring. Johnson went home on a single by Sperry and when the inning ended Whitehead was dismissed.

After getting nothing on three pairs of hits off Thomas in the third, fourth, and fifth innings, the Sox managed to nick him for three hits in the sixth, two scoring. Radcliff, Appling, and Kreevich singled, Radcliff counting. Appling scored on Schlueter's infield out.

Boyles' bad seventh inning opened with a single by Johnson. Chapman popped out and Sperry singled. Parker bounced to Boyles and the rookie had a double play set up, but his throw pulled Berger off second base. This error filled the bases. In the excitement Boyles walked Thomas, Johnson scoring. Finney's single sent Sperry and Parker home. After Moses had walked, Thomas dashed home on Werber's fly to Kreevich.

With one out in the ninth Finney and Moses singled and Werber walked. They held their bases on Hayes' fly to short center, but they all moved a moment later when Johnson hoist-

Styles.

It seems the style in woman's dress
Is for more and more of less and less.
The stylists cut and plan and sew
More of our doubtful charms to show.
They cut the toe from out our shoe,
Not satisfied, the heel went, too.
Our skirts they cut off by degrees
Until they're now up to our knees.
They make us hats without a crown
To match the ever backless gown.
The bathing togs have lost so much
Their wearers get themselves in dutch;
In fact, they've grown so very scant
They'd scarcely cover up an ant.
The reason for these styles insane?
They're making heads without a brain.
—G. E. R. Trude.

Journey's End.

I know not why it is, but with you here
The day seems brighter and the sky more fair,
The swift, bright birds that wing the sunlit air
Sing sweeter, too, knowing you are near.
Somehow the bitterness of all the year
Is banished by the knowledge that you care,
And I am given courage, yea I dare
To tell you this at last, my dear, my dear.

For I am happy only where you are,
And I can never be content again
To walk along the common ways of men;
I have been lifted up, I have been blessed
By beauty which no thought, no deed can mar,
And so have reached an ending of my quest.

A HILL BILLY'S WINDUP BREAKS ARM; CALL GAME

Medina, Tenn., Aug. 3.—(AP)—Speed Ball Jake Slaughter of the Zion Hill Billies figured today he'd have to change his windup if he's to continue his career as a pitcher.

With a 3 to 0 lead over the Webb Farmers in the sixth inning he broke his pitching arm by banging it against his head during the process of getting ready to throw his fast one. It stopped the game, for Slaughter was his team's only pitcher.

BY BOB BECKER.

Illinois fishermen visiting the Eagle river and Three Lakes in Wisconsin have been fooling pike and muskies.

On our recent visit to these waters we found a number of Illinois anglers in the lake region from Three Lakes north to Land o' Lakes having such good luck that they were entering their catches in local fish contests. Although northern Wisconsin has experienced some pretty heavy rains, they didn't keep the fish from biting.

One party of Chicago fishermen hit the pike in Cranberry lake a few days ago. They hooked 36 fish with a total weight of 100 pounds. Cranberry apparently has a lot of pike willing to bite, as another catch of 17 wall-eyes weighing 42 pounds was made by R. J. Brauer of Oak Park and C. B. Byle of Chicago.

North Twin lake is another lake that has been making the pike fishermen happy during the last few weeks. One of the best muskies we have heard of this season was taken from Lac Vieux Desert. It was caught by J. E. McKee of Western Springs, Ill., and weighed forty-two pounds. S. C. Sundvick of Chicago, who was fishing with McKee landed a muskie weighing seventeen pounds.

One of the funniest fishing stories we have heard of this season has its locale in the Three Lakes chain of lakes and involves two Chicagoans, Bernard J. Debs and Walter H. Neumann. They were fishing for pike. While changing positions in the boat they upset it, getting an early morning ducking. All of their rods and equipment went to the bottom.

A little later Debs started diving to see if he could find the tackle. He was successful in locating and hauling up the rods. But he could hardly believe his eyes when he found a two pound pike on his outfit—it had swallowed the minnow on his hook while his fishing outfit was resting on the bottom of the lake.

PIRATES BEAT BEES TWICE.

Boston, Mass., Aug. 3.—(AP)—Making a total of 28 hits, the Pittsburgh Pirates overcame both the Boston Bees and a 95 degree heat in two games today, 9 to 4 and 5 to 3, to widen their National league lead to 5½ games. Though the Bees couldn't get to Cy Blanton with any success in the opener, the heat finally did, and the Pirates star pitcher left the box at the end of the seventh while leading, 7 to 4. However, he received credit for the victory and became the first Pirate hurler to win eight games in a row.

MAD MONEY'S SPEEDY FINISH BRINGS VICTORY

Handicappers Fail After Picking Five Winners.

BY FRENCH LANE.

Mad Money, the Lemar Stock farm's good three year old by North Star III.-Knockout, knocked out the last of the aspiring amateur handicappers at Washington Park again yesterday afternoon. Two tickets were still alive for a $3,000 prize when Mad Money staged his powerful stretch run in the featured sixth race.

Mad Money raced right by the favorite, Co-Sport, and into the lead at the head of the stretch. One of the two live tickets was on Co-Sport, which faltered to finish third, beaten also by Bow and Arrow. The other aspiring handicapper with his eye on the $3,000 had even tougher luck.

King's Heir Fails.

His horse was King's Heir, one of the aces of the Dixiana stable. King's Heir was setting the pace when he broke down on the far turn. Jocky Rosen immediately pulled up and dismounted. The demise of the favorites means there will be $4,000 hung up for the marksmen today.

Only five went to the post for the feature. When the start came King's Heir rushed away fastest and Co-Sport went right with him under a tight hold. Mad Money was well back in third place with Southland Beau and Bow and Arrow strung out even farther back.

Co-Sport caught Kings Heir on the turn. Here Kings Heir collapsed, letting his four rivals sweep by. Co-Sport had scarcely taken the lead before he, too, faltered. Mad Money was there to take over and once he was in front, the Lemar 3 year old stayed there.

Birdlea Wins Fifth.

Mad Money was ridden by K. McCombs. His time for the mile was 1:40 2-5, nothing sensational.

Birdlea proved another villain for the aspiring handicappers. She canceled ten out of twelve when she beat Mar Le in the fifth. The South American colt, Vespasiano, was third. Mar Le had the early speed, but Birdlea was well placed and went to the top when Porter Roberts asked her to. She scored by a length in 1:39 for the mile.

63 YEARLINGS BRING $128,275 AT SARATOGA

Saratoga Springs, N. Y., Aug. 3.—[Special.]—The pace of the annual yearling sale quickened here tonight when sixty-three head were sold for $128,275, an average of $2,036 each.

Don Cameron, well known trainer, paid the top price of the night, $13,000, for a brown colt by Blue Larkspur out of Speedboat. The second highest price was $12,000 bid by Louis Fuestel for a daughter of Man o' War out of Shady. Fuestel was Man o' War's trainer during the great racer's track career. He paid $9,800 in another bid for a bay colt by Whichone out of Gas Bag.

MANY 'INSIDERS' CAUGHT ASLEEP IN STOCK RISE

Sell Shares of Own Firms, SEC Reports.

Corporation "insiders"—the officers, directors, and principal stockholders—were caught napping along with the rest of the country by the stock market rise which began June 20. This was indicated yesterday in the summary of June transactions by company officials and chief stockholders, reported by the Securities and Exchange commission.

Junius S. Morgan sells before stocks rise.

During June, sales by officials continued to exceed purchases, just as they have since last October, with a few scattered exceptions. Little buying was done by the insiders before June 20, the report showed. And after June 20 selling continued to have an edge, indicating that officials were uncertain how long the market would continue upward.

Prominent Shares Sold.

Officials of a number of prominent companies sold shares in their own organizations during June. These included General Motors corporation, National Steel company, Sears, Roebuck & Co., Johns-Manville corporation, International Nickel company of Canada, F. W. Woolworth company, Deere & Co., and Borg-Warner corporation.

Victor Emanuel, chairman of Aviation and Transportation corporation, was on the buying side, purchasing 1,300 common shares in the company on June 22 and 24. The purchases, made indirectly through a holding company, brought his direct and indirect equity to 35,836 shares.

William P. Allen, a director of E. I. du Pont de Nemours & Co., first sold and then bought stocks in the du Pont firm. He disposed of 100 preferred shares on June 21 and 2,100 shares of debenture stock on June 23. Then, on June 30, he bought 1,000 common shares.

Hurley Buys Shares.

Edward N. Hurley Jr., president of Electric Household Utilities corporation, Chicago, bought 950 common shares in his firm, spreading the purchases over a period from June 2 to June 30. This increased his direct holdings to 34,586 shares.

Junius S. Morgan, partner of J. P. Morgan & Co., was one of those who reported making a substantial sale just before the market began its sharp upturn. On June 15 he disposed of 1,500 common shares of General Motors corporation, of which he is a director. This left him 910 shares. A vice president of General Motors, William A. Fisher, Detroit, sold 1,200 shares on June 27 and 29.

Ernest T. Weir, chairman of the National Steel corporation, sold 3,000 common shares on June 24, reducing his holdings to 54,895 shares.

From June 21 through June 30, Lessing J. Rosenwald, chairman of Sears Roebuck & Co., sold 3,530 shares of the company, retaining 104,940 shares.

Own Few Shares.

The two highest officials of Commonwealth Edison company owned directly a combined total of eighty-eight shares of the company's stock, the report disclosed. James Simpson, chairman of the board, owned forty shares of the utility's stock, and Edward J. Doyle, president, owned forty-eight shares.

Largest stockholders among officials of the company was Charles A. McCulloch, a director, with 32,000 shares. Solomon A. Smith, another director, held 2,950 shares in his own name and 9,888 in trust. The next largest holder was John F. Gilchrist, vice president, with 4,619 shares.

The sale of 5,000 shares of common stock of Johns-Manville corporation on June 22, 23, and 24 was reported by H. E. Manville, chairman of the executive committee of the company. This reduced his direct holdings to 10,940 shares.

Jessie W. Donahue, a director of F. W. Woolworth company, sold 10,000 common shares of the firm in June—7,000 before June 20 and 3,000 after that date.

George W. Borg, chairman of Borg-Warner corporation, on June 20 sold 5,000 common shares of the company, leaving 8,782 shares directly held and 23,398 shares held in a trust.

Sells Deere & Co. Stock.

Dwight Deere Wiman, a director of Deere & Co., sold 2,000 common shares from June 21 to the end of the month. George W. Crampton, treasurer of the company, gave away 2,100 shares on June 9.

The sale of 1,732 shares of common of International Nickel on June 8 was reported by Britton Osler, director, Toronto.

Clarence H. Mackay, director of International Telephone and Telegraph company, disposed of 2,700 common shares from June 1 to June 22.

Stock of Greyhound corporation, Chicago, was sold by company officials. C. E. Wickman, president, disposed of 1,000 common shares on June 30. O. S. Caesar, vice president, sold 3,000 shares, 2,000 directly and 1,000 through a holding company, from June 22 to the end of the month. He also sold on June 30 900 shares of 5½ per cent preference stock held indirectly.

Other transactions for June reported to the commission included the following:

Stocks Retreat on War Fears, Gold Hoarding

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Aug. 3.—Lower prices were the rule at the close of trading on the stock market today. Losses in the leaders ranged from fractions to about 2 points. Gains of similar proportions had been chalked up early in the day. Except at the opening, when a few large blocks were moved, trading was quiet. Turnover was 817,160 shares.

The opening bulge was attributed to a continuation of the mild recovery experienced Tuesday. However, after substantial gains had been registered, interest waned and prices moved lower. Final prices were near the day's low marks.

Causes of Price Decline.

Chief factors in the decline, according to opinion in Wall street, were the menacing war developments in the far east and the activity in the London gold market. The increased gold hoarding in Europe is believed to reflect unfavorable economic conditions in a number of countries as well as increased fears of war in Siberia and Czechoslovakia.

Motors, rubbers, motor transportation shares, steels, and coppers were in heaviest supply today. General Motors and Chrysler each dropped ¾ point. United States Rubber lost 1½ points. B. F. Goodrich lost a substantial fraction. Yellow Truck eased ⅝. Anaconda, Kennecott, and International Nickel lost ¾ to 1⅛. Steels dropped fractions to 1⅝ points, with United States Steel, Inland, and Crucible hardest hit.

Rails Lose Early Gains.

Under the leadership of Delaware and Hudson and New York Central, carrier shares pointed higher at the opening, but gains were not held. Moderate losses predominated at the close. Public utility issues were quiet and lower throughout.

A feature on the upside was the strength of gold stocks. Homestake rose nearly 2 points to approach its previous high. Oil stocks were firm for a while, then eased on reports of a rise in gasoline stocks. Texas corporation slumped 1 point.

The "war scares" reputedly aided aviation stocks for a time. Douglas held to a small fractional advance. Allied Chemical was a strong spot in its group, climbing 2½ points.

The exchange announced today that 1,254 issues were listed with a market value of $44,784,224,215 as of Aug. 1, compared with 1,256 and a total market value of $41,961,875,154 a month earlier.

The average market price of 1,427,048,764 shares stood at $31.38 on Aug. 1, against 1,426,893,438 with an average price of $29.40 on July 1 and $42.30 on Aug. 1, 1937.

Berlin Stocks Fall.

BERLIN, Aug. 3. — (AP) — Leading stocks dropped 1 to 2 per cent on the Berlin bourse today as the bearish movement continued for the second day.

Financial newspapers ascribed the slump to the increased corporation tax announced yesterday, far eastern developments, and strained relations between Germany and Czechoslovakia.

London Trade Restricted.

LONDON, Aug. 3.—(AP) — Nearness of the fortnightly settlement and war news from the far east had a restricting effect on stock exchange trading today. Small losses were the rule in the industrial group. Oils were firmer and mines moved unevenly. Foreign bonds weakened.

CHICAGO ACTION CHARGES 11 WITH FRAUD; 3 SEIZED

The return of a suppressed indictment in federal court here last week against Victor De Villiers, head of a stock brokerage house, and ten other defendants was revealed yesterday. The disclosure came with announcement of the arrest of three defendants in New York. De Villiers' firm has offices at 82 Wall street, New York.

The eleven defendants are charged with violating the securities and exchange act in connection with the sale of $60,000 in securities, of which about $30,000 were sold in Chicago.

Assistant District Attorney A. Bradley Eben said bench warants have been issued for the arrest of the other defendants, some of whom are said to be in Chicago. Those who are held in New York and whose removal to Chicago for trial will be sought are De Villiers, Arthur L. Rosenfeld, and Edward Schofs, all officials of the company.

The other defendants are Sam J. Lewis, Oscar Mohr, Charles Stearns, Max Manners, Murray Heitel, H. B. Keller, Morton Lewis, and the De Villiers Staff, Inc., all of New York.

DELAY REFUSED COMMISSION MEN IN FEE STRUGGLE

Washington, D. C., Aug. 3.—(AP)—Associate Justice Butler of the Supreme court refused today to give Kansas City commission men additional time to answer Secretary Wallace's order reopening proceedings in the stockyards case. Their bill of exceptions to the order must be filed by Aug. 15.

The order, issued June 2, came as a result of the Supreme court's invalidation of one issued in 1933, reducing the maximum rate to be charged by commission men at the stockyards. Justice Butler ruled that seventy-five days was sufficient time for the commission men's counsel to state their objections.

The federal District court ordered returned to the commission men the impounded sum of $586,000, representing the difference between the new rates and the old. Justice Butler subsequently ordered the money held by the federal court until the high court acts on a government appeal.

MEXICO BALKS AT ARBITRATION OF U. S. CLAIMS

Offers to Pay for Lands When Able.

[Copyright: 1938: By the New York Times.]

MEXICO CITY, Mexico, Aug. 3.—[Special.]—The Mexican government today rejected a proposal by the United States that the question of payment for American owned farm lands expropriated in recent years by Mexico be submitted to arbitration. However, it offered to negotiate directly with the United States if the Washington government will give Mexico whatever amount of time economic conditions require to make payment. Washington had asked prompt payment.

The refusal to arbitrate was contained in a note handed to Ambassador Josephus Daniels by Foreign Secretary Eduardo Hay.

Mexico refused to admit the principle enunciated in Secretary of State Cordell Hull's note of July 21 that "the prompt payment of just compensation" is the basis of universally recognized rules of law and equity in cases of expropriation. The lands in question involve claims of $10,000,000 on lands seized since 1927, and additional amount for older claims.

Concedes Inability to Pay.

The reply to Hull's note concedes by implication that Mexico is unable to make full payment. Any arrangement on indemnity for the American lands, it said, must be made in accordance with the "economic conditions" of Mexico.

Secretary Hull had declared in his note: "The taking of property without compensation is not expropriation. It is confiscation. It is no less confiscation because there may be an expressed intent to pay at some time in the future."

He added "surest way of breaking up the good neighbor policy would be to allow the impression that it permits the disregard of the just rights of the nationals of one country owning property in another."

The strong tone of the Mexican negation of this principle appears, in the light of Hull's words, to throw the good neighbor policy into danger and to place the state department in a difficult position.

May Set a Precedent.

Acceptance of the Mexican contention—that the time during which payment is to be made must be based upon Mexico's economic ability—would set a precedent for the rest of Latin America and the world.

It is recognized in Mexico that while the Mexican note refers to the specific question of the American lands expropriated, by implication it covers the subject of indemnity for all expropriation, including the recent seizure of American oil companies.

Stressing Mexican sovereignty and noting that the Mexican constitution orders indemnity payment, the government declares that if the United States is willing to accept payment on the basis of Mexico's ability to pay, the Mexican government is willing to negotiate a settlement on the agrarian claims directly with the United States.

Proposes Two Negotiators.

The note proposes that one representative from each country meet to "fix the value of the properties affected and the manner of paying."

Secretary Hay, in the reply, held arbitration is not applicable to the land cases because Mexico admits obligation to reimburse the owners.

Arbitration, his note said, "should be reserved for cases of irreconcilable difference. This does not apply in the present case, he observed, because "the Mexican government has never denied the obligation." He added "no subject exists, therefore, for the arbitration proposed."

New U. S. Note Expected.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 3.—(AP)—State department officials studied tonight Mexico's reply to Secretary Hull's note on expropriation of American-owned agrarian properties, but would not discuss it. Diplomatic circles considered it likely another American note would be forthcoming.

REPORT B. & O. ASKS INTEREST CUT FOR 5 YEARS

New York, Aug. 3.—[Special.]—The Baltimore and Ohio railroad has proposed a plan to the Reconstruction Finance corporation which provides that holders of the railroad's debentures and first and refunding mortgage bonds agree for five years to forego one coupon a year on their bonds, it was reported here today.

This would reduce the interest in cash on such obligations by 10 per cent. It would save the railroad approximately $11,000,000 a year and reduce temporarily its fixed charges to an amount which would be met from earnings.

NAZIS TO REPAY FRENCH LOSS ON AUSTRIAN LOANS

PARIS, Aug. 3.—(AP)—Germany and France have reached an accord, it was announced today, by which Germany agreed to reimburse the French government for any costs it incurred from its guarantee of Austrian loans. The French government had guaranteed in part an Austrian twenty year loan in 1933 and a twenty-five year loan in 1934.

Germany also agreed to settle all Austrian debts in France on the same basis as German debts, except the Young and Dawes loans.

On the Dawes loan France accepted the same arrangement previously accepted by Britain—reduction of the interest rate from 7 to 5 per cent. Germany agreed to establish a fund as of April 15, 1938, for resumption of amortization which has been suspended for several years.

Reduction of interest on the Young loan from 5½ to 5 per cent also was accepted by France, with the establishment of an amortization fund effective June 1, 1940.

'DOCTOR'S ODYSSEY' AUTHOR HEADS STUDY OF WORK CONDITIONS

New York, Aug. 3.—(AP)—Dr. Victor G. Heiser, author of "An American Doctor's Odyssey," has been named research director of a committee to study and improve working conditions. The appointment was announced today by the National Association of Manufacturers. Dr. Heiser formerly was director of health of the Philippine Islands.

Dr. Victor G. Heiser.

The association said the committee was organized to assist American industry in the fields of industrial health as well as better working conditions. Dr. Heiser will be assisted by Dr. Donald M. Shafer of Grove City, Pa., an industrial hygienist.

Dr. Heiser said it was a "safe prediction that 50 per cent of occupational diseases could be wiped out within two or three years" with the proper gathering and dissemination of information on industrial medicine.

RECORD CROWDS DRAWN TO MANY OF TRADE SHOWS

Record crowds of out of town buyers are attending many of the various fall market and trade exhibits being held in Chicago, sponsors announced yesterday.

More than 6,000 are attending the fall opening market events held in connection with the 34th semi-annual convention of the Interstate Merchant's council, retail merchants' affiliate of the Chicago Association of Commerce. Additional thousands are attending other exhibits.

At the Merchandise Mart, Percy Wilson, vice president of Marshall Field & Co., said buying at the women's, children's, and infants' wear and accessories market is running 18 per cent ahead of last year. Wilson said business at the gift show and china, glassware and pottery market is 20 per cent ahead of August, 1937.

Ross B. Lanigan, chairman of the international linen exposition at the Palmer house, said all participants in that show reported increases in business compared with last year.

At the music industries convention at the Stevens hotel Lyon & Healy, Chicago won first place for the best musical merchandise advertisment published in the last year.

Steel Making Rate Rises to 40% Capacity

A further increase in activity at the leading mill centers stepped steel production up to 40 per cent of capacity this week. The magazine Iron Age said yesterday that this is the highest operating schedule in almost nine months. It asserted, however, that a leveling off in output of steel ingots is expected soon in view of widespread August shutdowns in the largest steel consuming plants.

The present upswing in production was caused by stronger mill schedules in such districts as Pittsburgh, Cleveland, Birmingham, Youngstown, Buffalo, and Wheeling-Weirton. The Wheeling-Weirton area is operating at the highest rate, 70 per cent of capacity.

Reports Cut in Wages.

Iron Age reported that a mid-west steel manufacturer employing 700 men had ordered cuts in wages ranging up to 25 per cent. The publication said that local leaders of the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers—an affiliate of John J. Lewis' organization—have agreed to the reduction, causing immediate speculation as to whether larger companies will immediately slash wages as a competitive move.

As a result of the wage reduction, according to Iron Age, the Steel Workers Organizing committee this week is denying reports that it is trying to freeze wage rates at or above present levels, but at the same time making agreements with "preferred" manufacturers by which wages are being cut.

Scrap Metal Prices Rise.

Rising scrap metal prices have resulted from the production gain, according to Iron Age. Its scrap composite price has risen to $14.33 per ton, a gain of 25 cents, and the highest level since Nov. 2, 1937. Pittsburgh announced that No. 1 heavy melting steel scrap has advanced 25 cents to $15.25 a ton, a new high mark for the current upturn.

Despite the rise in ingot production, optimism within the industry is more restrained than a week ago, Iron Age said.

The automobile industry, of all large steel consumers, appears in the best position for heavy steel consumption, Iron Age said. The largest companies will have to buy steel before beginning production of 1939 models.

100 MILLION SLASH IN CAPITAL IS AIM OF COLUMBIA GAS

New York, Aug. 3.—[Special.]—The first step in a program to effect write-downs aggregating $100,000,000 in the $700,000,000 Columbia Gas and Electric corporation system was undertaken today.

The Cincinnati Gas and Electric company, one of Columbia's largest subsidiaries, issued to shareholders a proposal to restate the capital represented by its common stock. This action will create a capital surplus of $22,500,000.

A second similar step in the program will be undertaken later by the Columbia Gas and Electric corporation as the parent company. Columbia Gas registered with the Securities and Exchange commission under the holding company act last January. Since then the SEC has forbidden the company to pay dividends on its common stock. The aim of the write-down program is to put the company in position to pay dividends without SEC consent.

MAY RAILROAD EMPLOYMENT IS LOWEST IN YEARS

Washington, D. C., Aug. 3.—(AP)—Railroad employment reached a long-time low of 905,573 workers in May. In that month, the interstate commerce commission said today, class 1 railways had a pay roll of $138,698,266. The I. C. C.'s index, based on employment during the 1923-'25 period, fell to 50.1 per cent, the lowest in statistics dating back to 1920.

In May, 1937, the class 1 carriers had 1,153,713 employés and a pay roll of $166,170,838. In that month the employment index stood at 63.

EUROPE SPEEDS BUYING OF U. S. DOLLARS, GOLD

Metal Purchasing Is Heaviest in Years.

Fears of war and currency tinkering caused another wild scramble for gold and American dollars in European money markets yesterday. Gold bars and gold coin were eagerly bought by hoarders and several European currencies again fell to new lows for the year or longer.

The rush for gold became almost a panic and far surpassed the heavy trading Tuesday. About $14,885,000 of the metal was traded in the London open market at the time of price fixing, the largest volume in years. Reports from European capitals told of higher prices paid for Dutch, American, and British gold coins.

British Pound Falls.

The British pound was hammered down 1⅞ cents to $4.89 in foreign exchange dealings. Closing 0.01¾ of a cent lower at 2.74 cents, the French franc established a new all-time low mark for the present franc. The Netherlands guilder, down 0.17 of a cent to 54.57 cents, reached a new 1938 low level.

During early dealings the Belgian belga, only important European currency linked definitly to gold, made good gains, but dropped back to close at 16.91 cents, only a shade above the preceding close. Swiss francs, usually relatively stable, finished lower but did not reach their 1938 low mark.

Cause of Heavy Demand.

The heavy demand for gold and American dollars was started by the outbreak last week-end of serious fighting between the Japanese and Russians. Declining tendencies, however, have been evident in foreign currencies recently due to the tense European political situation. A better industrial outlook in the United States also has encouraged demand for American money.

Weakness in British money has been aggravated by rumors that the pound would be permitted to fall to its old relationship to the dollar, between $4.86 and $4.87. The pound is now about 13 cents below its top this year.

Report Japanese Sell.

During the last two days the pressure on British money has been increased. Speculative selling has been reported in large volume and Japanese banking houses were said to be especially heavy sellers. Fearful of further declines, many continental European business men who maintain sterling balances in London have sold British money and bought gold.

Most of the gold offered for sale in London yesterday was said to have come from the official stabilization fund. The price of the metal was 4½ pence [about 9 cents] above the quotation at the time of price fixing Tuesday. As measured by American money, gold actually closed lower than on Tuesday because of the fall of British money in foreign exchange markets. The close was $34.78 an ounce, against $34.80 Tuesday.

A shipment of $2,531,000 gold from Canada was received at New York yesterday. This was the first consignment of gold from Canada in several months. Canada recently has been selling her new production in London.

AGREE TO CALL ON MEDIATOR IN RAIL WAGE FIGHT

Carriers and Brotherhood End Conferences.

BY PHILIP HAMPSON.

Railroad managements and the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen yesterday ended their Chicago negotiations over a proposed 15 per cent wage cut. Both sides agreed to call upon the national mediation board at Washington to make the next move in the wage dispute.

Dr. W. M. Leiserson, head of national mediation board.

It is expected that the eighteen unions represented by the railway labor executive board and the railroads will end their wage negotiations today or tomorrow.

Dr. William M. Leiserson, chairman of the national mediation board, is expected to be in Chicago Monday to start mediation. This is the second step prescribed by law for the handling of railroad labor disputes. The third step may be either arbitration or the appointment of a fact finding commission by President Roosevelt.

Doubt Peace by Mediation.

On the basis of the present attitude of labor and the managements, it is not believed that the dispute will be settled by a mediator. It is also held to be unlikely that the case will be settled by arbitration. It is believed likely that the case eventually will go before a fact finding commission.

The mediator holds his meetings in secret and parties to the dispute are forbidden to discuss the case with outsiders. The reason that arbitration is held to be unlikely is that the decision of an arbitration board is binding on the parties to the dispute, and neither side is disposed to bind itself to acceptance. Violation of an arbitration decision is punishable for contempt. The decision of a fact finding commission is not binding, and has only the weight of public opinion back of it.

Enochs Gives Rails' View.

The end to the negotiations with the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen came to an end just after noon in the tower of the Stevens hotel. H. A. Enochs, chairman of the carriers Joint Conference committee, spoke for the railroads. A. F. Whitney, president of the brotherhood, spoke for the trainmen.

In a formal statement Enochs said that since the meeting started on July 18 his association has shown labor that "railroad wages today, in a time of general depression, are at the highest average level in history. In contrast, a third of the nation's railroad mileage is now in bankruptcy, and in the first quarter more than half of the roads failed to earn enough to pay operating expenses and taxes."

Whitney declared that the railroads are trying to keep wages at the lowest possible level.

National Dairy Products.

Investors' Guide: I would like a report on National Dairy Products.—G. M. L.

Answer: National Dairy Products corporation produces and distributes ice cream, milk, cheese, butter, frozen eggs, egg products, mayonnaise, salad dressing, and other items in the dairy field. The company is the largest in the dairy industry.

National Dairy Products is principally a holding company and engages in the various divisions of the dairy business through subsidiaries. It was incorporated in Delaware in 1923. Since that time it has grown through the acquisition of numerous other companies. Larger cities now served include New York, Chicago, Cleveland, Philadelphia, Baltimore, Washington, Cincinnati, Nashville, Miami, Milwaukee, St. Paul, St. Louis, Omaha, Detroit, and Kansas City.

One of the best known subsidiaries is the Kraft-Phenix Cheese corporation, acquired in 1930. Kraft-Phenix handles a large part of the cheese business for the parent corporation in the United States and foreign countries.

Sales are rather well diversified. Ice cream has in the past been one of the most profitable lines. Relative importance of the fluid milk division has declined somewhat, and sales of milk byproducts and nonmilk products have increased.

Net income for the first half of this year was $4,845,134, or 71 cents a common share, compared with $5,079,542, or 76 cents a share, in the corresponding period last year. Sales reached an all-time high in 1937, but earnings were below those in 1936, due to higher costs of raw materials and heavier operating expenses.

Net income was $10,290,732, or $1.53 a share, in 1937; $13,282,028, or $2.01 a share, in 1936; $9,338,205, or $1.38 a share, in 1935; $6,551,930, or 94 cents a share, in 1934, and $26,254,326, or $4.10 a share, in 1930.

Funded debt is about $64,039,000. There are outstanding 57,339 shares of $100 par 7 per cent cumulative class A preferred, 41,370 shares of $100 par 7 per cent cumulative class B preferred, and 6,255,247 shares of no par common. The company's debentures are considered sound and the preferred appears to be rather high grade. The common is somewhat speculative at present.

The corporation had total assets of $202,806,633 at the end of 1937. Current assets were $64,748,690 and current liabilities were $29,360,524.

Railroad Yardsticks—V.

The investor interested in yardsticks can find many others in connection with railroads. For example, he would be wise to study the classification of revenue freight tonnage. The interstate commerce commission requires that each railroad keep records showing the percentage of total freight trafic carried in each of the following groups: Products of agriculture, products of animals, products of mines, products of forests, manufactures and miscellaneous, and merchandise [less-than-carload lots].

Diversification of trafic is desirable. As a very general rule, it might be said that the greater the diversification of trafic the more stable are the operating revenues. There are, however, important exceptions to this rule. During a bad depression roads with diversified trafic show sharp declines in revenues, as well as those roads that lean heavily on one class of trafic. A temporary downturn in one or only a few industries is not usually so serious for the road with diversified trafic.

The kind of trafic also influences earnings. In general, roads that carry a fairly large amount of various manufactured commodities have an advantage, other things being equal, because rates are higher on this type of business. Less than carload merchandise also is profitable as freight. Only relatively low rates can be charged on some mining and agricultural products.
